NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF TRIBAL HISTORIC PRESERVATION OFFICERS

Save the Date

The 15th National Tribal Preservation Conference (15th Annual NATHPO Meeting) will be held in Billings, Montana, the week of August 19, 2013.

NATHPO is working with the Montana-Wyoming Tribal Leaders Council this year to offer educational presentations and field trips.

Note: Crow Fair and Rodeo is August 15-19, 2013. Link for more information on Crow Fair: http://visitmt.com/listing/categories_NET/MoreInfo.aspx?IDRRecordID=8832

More information in the near future.

STATE/TRIBAL WEBINAR SERIES ON CLIMATE CHANGE ADAPTION: This virtual Symposium on climate change adaptation for states, tribes and local governments will be offered in a series of twelve on-line sessions over two weeks. The series will bring together tribal, state and local stakeholders, EPA representatives, and experts from a variety of sectors to consider the impact of EPA's new Climate Change Adaptation Plan on the implementation of federal environmental programs, and to present case studies, tools and solutions to some of the most pressing climate change adaptation challenges. Individual webinars are stand-alone educational opportunities for governments, planners and policy makers, and participants can attend one or more webinars as meets their particular needs.

Participants will obtain the most current knowledge and information applicable to states, tribes and communities on adaptation practice and implementation to build community resiliency. For more info. and the 2013 webinar series schedule, visit <http://climate-adaptation-symposium.org/index.html>.

2013 NABI BASKETBALL TOURNAMENT TO HOST 128 TEAMS —The Native American Basketball Invitational (NABI) Foundation, known for organizing high profile sporting events for Native American athletes, will host 128 teams (64 boys & 64 girls' teams) for their 11TH Anniversary NABI Invitational July 17-21 in Phoenix. Tribes from all across the US as well as teams from Canada and New Zealand will be representing their indigenous people and hoping to bring home the NABI Championship trophy. NABI started out as a small local tournament in 2003 and since has become a youth non-profit organizing one of the largest all Native American tournaments; bringing exposure to thousands of Native American High School athletes from all over North America. Along with a record number of teams, Ak-Chin Indian Community, Nike N7 and Yavapai Prescott Indian Tribe will be the presenting sponsors of this prestige tournament. Games will be played in 10 Phoenix area gyms starting July 18th with the NABI Championship games being played at US Airways Center on July 21st. For more info., visit the NABI official website at www.nabifoundation.org or contact info@nabifoundation.org.

AMERICAN INDIAN FELLOWSHIP IN BUSINESS SCHOLARSHIPS AND "NATIVE AMERICAN 40 UNDER 40" AWARDS: The National Center for American Indian Enterprise Development (NCAIED) is now accepting applications for the NCAIED American Indian Fellowship in Business Scholarship and nominations for our 2013 "Native American 40 Under 40" Awards. The deadline for application and nomination submissions is August 2, 2013. These scholarships are awarded to American Indian undergraduate or graduate students majoring in business who have demonstrated a commitment to pursuing excellence in academics and giving back to the American Indian community. The NCAIED "Native American 40 Under 40" Awards recognizes 40 emerging American Indian leaders less than 40 years of age who have demonstrated leadership, initiative, and dedication to achieve significant contributions in their businesses, communities, and Indian Country. The awards will be presented at the fall Regional Reservation Economic Summit Arizona (RES Arizona) to be held in October. For more information and to download forms, please visit <http://www.ncaied.org>.

ARIZONA OFFICE OF TOURISM MARKETING COOPERATIVE PROGRAM: AOT's Marketing Cooperative program documents are now online at <http://www.azot.gov/marketing-programs/cooperative-opportunities>. AOT is also considering holding a conference call for Tribal entities who are interested in this program or who have questions. For questions or additional information, contact Dawn Melvin at (602) 364-3707 or DMelvin@azot.gov

Terracide and the Terrarists

Tom Engelhardt, Op-Ed: We don't have a word for the conscious act of destroying the planet we live on, the world as humanity had known it until, historically speaking, late last night. A possibility might be "terracide" from the Latin word for earth. The truth is, whatever we call them, it's time to talk bluntly about the terrarists of our world. To destroy our planet with malice aforethought, with only the most immediate profits on the brain, with only your own comfort and wellbeing (and those of your shareholders) in mind: Isn't that the ultimate crime? Isn't that terracide? READ | DISCUSS | SHARE

China Incinerates 3 US Shipments of Genetically Modified Corn

Anthony Gucciardi, News Report: China has destroyed a total of at least three genetically modified corn shipments with origins from the U.S. in a move that echoes the way in which the nation of Hungary actually went and destroyed acres upon acres of Monsanto's GMO corn fields. When even China has the will to destroy Monsanto's GMOs, you know there's something wrong with officials in the U.S. who sit idly by as millions consume Monsanto's Roundup-drenched GMO foods on a daily basis. Thankfully, action is being taken at warp speed. READ | DISCUSS | SHARE

13 Reasons to Be Worried About Water, and What to Do About It

Jan Wellmann, News Analysis: When our most powerful telescopes scan the universe for evidence of life, the first thing they look for is water. Water is nearly synonymous with life itself. Certainly it is intrinsic to every aspect of human existence. So perhaps it's time we took a closer look at the water right here on planet Earth—especially since severe water shortages are an increasingly severe concern around the globe, including in the U.S. There are 13 elementary reasons we should be asking more questions about the quality of our drinking water and where it comes from. The Stream

At a conference in Bonn, Germany, water scientists warned that the majority of the world's population will be dealing with water shortages within two generations, the Guardian reported. The shortages will affect both developed and developing countries, driven by climate change, over-use and pollution.

Fracking and Beer

The German beer industry is raising concerns about hydraulic fracturing as the country’s government considers its options for allowing the controversial drilling technique, Reuters reported. The beer industry said that any water contamination from fracking could hurt the traditional purity of the brews.

Colorado River capacity scrutinized

Associated Press

Water resource managers from seven Western states plan to join conservation groups and Indian tribes in San Diego on Tuesday to begin hammering out rules for squeezing every useable drop from the overtaxed Colorado River.

As Colorado River drought worsens, water officials parley
Tony Perry, Los Angeles Times

Amid a worsening drought along the Colorado River, 40-plus water agency officials, environmentalists, farmers and Indian tribal leaders from the seven states that depend on the river for survival are gathered here for a “moving forward”

As Lake Mead shrinks, California uses more than its share of water

HENRY BREAN, LAS VEGAS REVIEW-JOURNAL

As water managers in Nevada and elsewhere fight to keep Lake Mead as full as possible, an irrigation district in California has significantly overdrawn its Colorado River allotment over the past three years.

California’s Vanishing Glaciers: A Defining Moment

Jeremy Miller, KQED

Last September, I climbed with a team of scientists and volunteers into the remote high country of Yosemite National Park, onto the ashen hide of the park’s largest ice sheet, the Lyell Glacier.

Slideshow: Top 10 trash items collected in coastal cleanup Sacramento Bee

The Ocean Conservancy, a Washington D.C.-based environmental organization, released its 2012 list of trash collected during its International Coastal Cleanup.

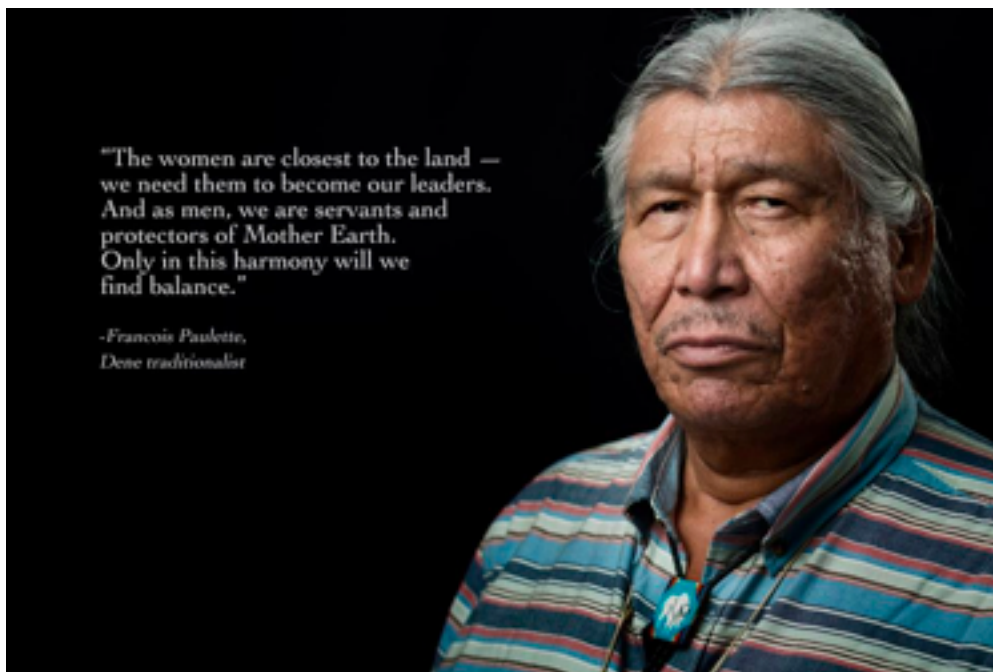

Indigenous communities will be most affected by the industrialization of their territories and would feel the first impacts of an oil spill. That is why we celebrate the fact that as the Peoples’ Arctic conference drew to an end, fifteen Indigenous representatives and organizations signed onto a joint statement rejecting oil development in the Arctic.

For those that asked (you will be sorry!) Collections at UNR for Paiute, Washo, and Shoshone are extensive. Over the next few days I will be giving you a peek at some of the material available. Summer time is a better time to do research as student load is down (my favorite times are during breaks). For quick decoding, UNR KC =UNR Knowledge Center, main library; GBC =Great Basin College; WNCC = Western Nevada Community College, Most are self-explanatory. sdc
