Burying a ton of orphaned uranium waste from Tennessee at the Nevada National Security Site might require installing a concrete container to keep its radioactive ingredients out of the environment and its dirty bomb material from falling into the wrong hands, according to Nye County officials who were at a closed-door meeting this week.

LIMITING USE OF FEDERAL LAND

For more than a decade, environmentalists have lobbied for Gold Butte to be designated a national conservation area. That push got a big shove last week when Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid, D-Nev., introduced legislation to fulfill conservationists' goal.

Resolving the nuke issue

To the Editor: Have you ever thought you would be in danger because of nuclear waste?

The Diablo Canyon Nuclear Power Plant has 16 casks in which they store spent fuel. There is a lot of nuclear waste and not many places to store it safely.

Keystone XL: The New Plunder of Native Lands

According to a BuzzFeed story, Vice President Joe Biden went rogue and told a Sierra Club activist he supports rejecting the Keystone XL pipeline. Reportedly, Elaine Cooper (of the South Carolina Sierra Club chapter) asked Biden if he supported the rejection of the Keystone XL. And Biden replied: "yes, I do — I share your views — but I am in the minority" and smiled.

Read the story here >> <http://bit.ly/ZOold6>

The last time Biden went rogue was last year when he told NBC that he supported gay marriage, and lo and behold, Obama got behind gay marriage 3 days later.

Let's pass this around and hope that with pressure from a Fearless Summer of action, President Obama will join his VP Joe Biden and stand on the side of justice again.

- Incline Village/Crystal Bay (7 positions)
- North Valleys (12 positions)
- South Truckee Meadows/Washoe Valley (12 positions)
- Spanish Springs (7 positions)
- Sun Valley (7 positions)
- Verdi Township (7 positions)
- Warm Springs/Rural (7 positions)
