Free NRFC Technical Assistance Webinar January 30, 2014: Working with Fathers to Identify and Resolve Substance Abuse Problems

The Office of Family Assistance, through the National Responsible Fatherhood Clearinghouse (NRFC), is providing this technical assistance webinar for all responsible fatherhood practitioners, including current OFA grantees, and other interested stakeholders.

This event is free but pre-registration is required. REGISTER HERE<https://events-na7.adobeconnect.com/content/connect/c1/1166535402/en/events/event/shared/1265306807/event_landing.html?sco-id=1349247183& charset=utf-8>.

Fathers participating in fatherhood programs are often faced by a number of personal issues that act as barriers to achieving parenting, relationship, and employment goals. One of the most significant of these issues is substance abuse. This webinar will share lessons learned from the field and tips to help fatherhood practitioners identify issues and work with fathers to resolve substance abuse problems.

Goals of Webinar: Participants will improve their knowledge and understanding of:

- * Techniques for identifying substance abuse problems.
- * Ways to help fathers acknowledge, and commit to dealing with, substance abuse problems.
- * Tips for helping fathers resolve substance abuse problems.
- * Utilizing peer support groups and connections with program staff to help fathers overcome substance abuse issues and strengthen family relationships.
- * Establishing effective referral networks.
- * Resources for fathers and practitioners who work with them.

Presenters:

- * Ted Strader, Executive Director, Council on Prevention and Education: Substances (COPES), Louisville, KY

* Andrew Gaddy, Program Coordinator, McDermott Center/Haymarket Center, Chicago, IL
Facilitator:

National Funding

Support for Organizations Aiding the Underserved

Walmart Foundation State Giving Program

The Walmart Foundation State Giving Program awards grants to nonprofit organizations at the state and regional level throughout the U.S. and Puerto Rico for programs that give individuals access to a better life. There are four funding cycles per year; nonprofit organizations in each state have two opportunities per year to apply. Applications will be accepted in all four funding cycles for programs within the scope of one of the following Focused Giving areas: Career Opportunity or Hunger Relief and Nutrition. Organizations seeking funding for programs outside of the Focused Giving categories, and whose programs address the unmet needs of underserved low-income populations, can apply in cycles three and four only. Grants range from $25,000 to $250,000, with an average size of $40,000. Visit the Foundation's website to learn more about the State Giving Program.

Youth Nutrition and Physical Activity Programs Funded

General Mills Foundation: Champions for Healthy Kids

The Champions for Healthy Kids program is a partnership of the General Mills Foundation, the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics Foundation, and the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports. The goal of the program is to encourage U.S. communities to improve the eating and physical activity patterns of young people. The program awards grants to organizations throughout the country that offer innovative programs to help youth (ages 2-18) adopt a balanced diet and physically active lifestyle. Local organizations that work with children, including health departments, government agencies, Native American tribes, and schools, are eligible to apply. The online application form will be available on February 1 and must be submitted by March 14, 2014. Visit the company's website to learn more about the Champions for Healthy Kids program.

Grants Promote Jewish Identity and Social Justice Nationally

Righteous Persons Foundation

The Righteous Persons Foundation is dedicated to supporting efforts that build a vibrant, just, and inclusive Jewish community in the United States. Steven Spielberg established the Foundation in the fall of 1994, initially with his profits from the film Schindler's List. Since then, the Foundation has invested in national nonprofit organizations working to revitalize Jewish arts, culture, and identity; engage the next generation; inspire a commitment to social justice; and promote understanding between Jews and those of other faiths and backgrounds. Letters of inquiry are reviewed two times a year; the upcoming deadline is March 1, 2014. Guidelines for developing letters of inquiry are available on the Foundation's website.

Contemporary Dance Projects Supported

National Dance Project: Production Grants

The National Dance Project (NDP), administered by the New England Foundation for the Arts, enhances the living, growing discipline of contemporary dance by supporting the production and presentation of dance throughout the United States. NDP's Production Grants fund the creation of new dance work that will tour nationally by supporting costs incurred through the artistic development of the work. Grants generally range from $25,000 to $40,000 and are awarded to approximately 20 dance projects each year. Eligible projects should involve a creative and dynamic partnership with one or more U.S. presenter partners in the development of the work. The upcoming inquiry application deadline is March 3, 2014. Visit the New England Foundation for the Arts website to review the funding criteria and access the application forms.

Regional Funding

Funds for Health Equity Advocacy in Colorado

The Colorado Trust

The mission of the Colorado Trust is to advance the health and well-being of the people of Colorado. The Trust is offering a new funding opportunity to help expand and advance innovative ideas in health equity advocacy. The focus is on addressing the following: 1) the systemic inequities in health rooted in differences such as race/ethnicity, income, and geography and utilizing policy as a lever to address these inequities; 2) the lack of awareness and understanding about health equity among the general public and policymakers; and 3) the need for better capacity, coordination, and collaboration amongst health equity advocates. During Phase One of this grant initiative, the Trust anticipates selecting approximately 30 grantees to receive up to $40,000 for a six-month grant period. The application deadline is February 19, 2014. Visit the Trust's website to download the Request for Applications.

Grants Address Child Abuse Issues in Texas

Texas Children's Justice Act Grant Program

The Texas Children's Justice Act (CJA) brings together child-protection and criminal justice experts to improve the state's response to cases of child abuse and neglect. The purpose of the CJA Grant Program is to improve the following: assessment and investigation of suspected child abuse and neglect cases in a manner which limits additional trauma to the child victim, assessment and investigation of cases of suspected child abuse or neglect related fatalities, investigation and prosecution of cases of child abuse and neglect, and assessment and investigation of cases involving children with disabilities or serious health-related problems who are suspected victims of abuse or neglect. Nonprofit organizations, state agencies, local governments (including courts), and educational institutions are eligible to apply for grants of up to $200,000. Funded programs must address one or more of the CJA priority areas and demonstrate potential for statewide, systems-level improvement. The application deadline is March 5, 2014. Visit the CJA website to review the Program Instructions.

Support for Arts and Environmental Programs in Maine

Quimby Family Foundation

The Quimby Family Foundation is dedicated to advancing wilderness values and to increasing access to the arts in the state of Maine. The Foundation supports nonprofit organizations that address critical environmental issues such as the protection of wildlife, the preservation of wildlands, and the promotion of non-consumptive, non-motorized recreation throughout the state. In addition, support is provided to organizations in Maine that foster an active, vibrant, and successful art community, including nonprofit galleries, exhibit space, art schools, and community outreach programs. Concept letters may be submitted between February 1 and February 28, 2014. Visit the Foundation's website to learn more about the grant guidelines and application process.

Rural Initiatives in Idaho, Montana, and Kentucky Funded

The Steele-Reese Foundation

The Steele-Reese Foundation provides support to nonprofit organizations that serve rural communities in Idaho, Montana, and Appalachian Kentucky. The Foundation maintains a focus on the unique challenges of rural living and on helping people build healthy, successful, and sustainable communities. Nonprofit organizations working in the areas of rural education, health, human/social services, the arts and humanities, and environmental conservation and historic preservation are eligible to apply. Grants generally range from $5,000 to $50,000 per year. Online applications must be submitted by March 1, 2014. Visit the Foundation's website to learn more about the program areas and application guidelines.

Court Denies Offshore Oil Lease Sale in America's Arctic JANUARY 22, 2014

Lease Sale 193 in the Chukchi Sea remanded by the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals

ANCHORAGE, AK — Today, the Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit ruled that the Department of the Interior violated the law when it sold offshore oil and gas leases in the Chukchi Sea off the coast of Alaska. The decision stems from a lawsuit filed by a coalition of Alaska Native and conservation groups represented by Earthjustice.

"The Obama administration now has the chance to do right by the Arctic and the planet by keeping oil drilling out of the Chukchi Sea. It makes no sense to open up the fragile, irreplaceable, and already melting Arctic Ocean to risky drilling for dirty oil that will only exacerbate climate change already wreaking havoc on the Arctic and elsewhere," said Erik Grafe, an attorney at Earthjustice, which represents the groups.

In response to the decision, the organizations issued the following joint statement:

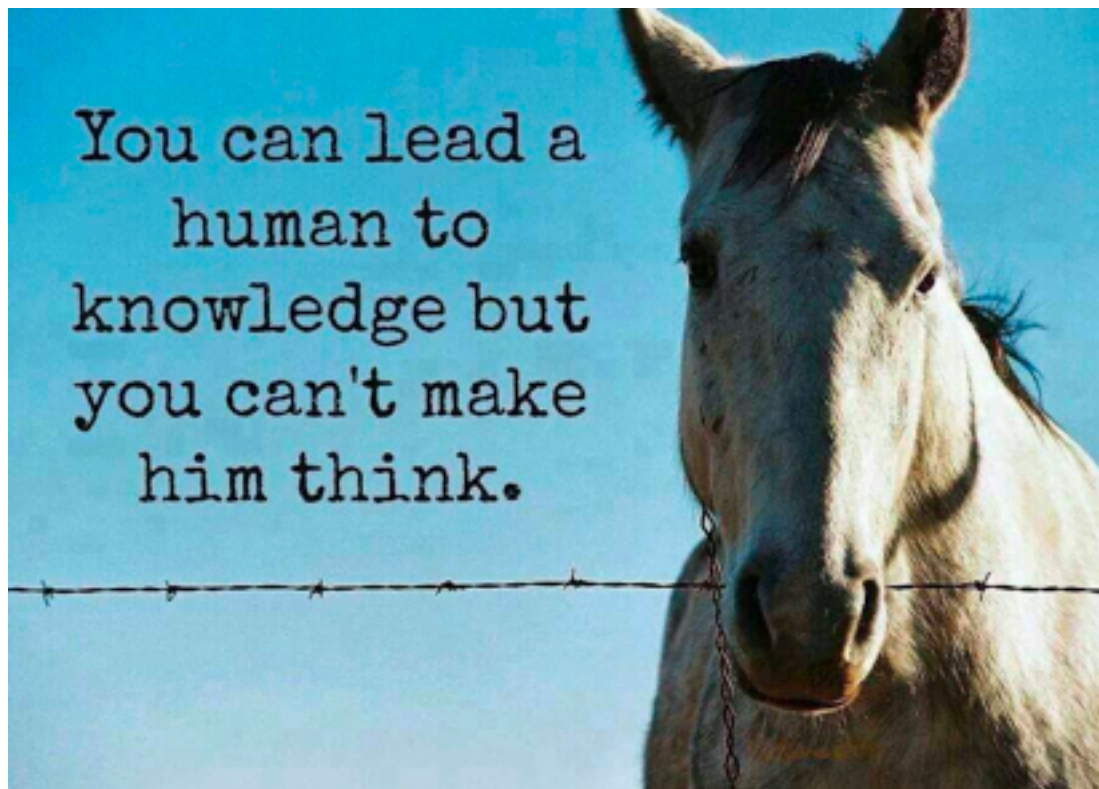

"Today's ruling is a victory for the Arctic Ocean. The government has no business offering oil companies leases in the Chukchi Sea. The area is home to iconic species such as polar bear, bowhead whales, and walrus and to a vibrant indigenous subsistence culture. Drilling for oil puts at risk the region's wildlife and people, and it takes us off the path toward a clean energy future.

“For the second time, a court has found that the government ignored basic legal protections for our ocean resources in deciding to open the Chukchi Sea to offshore oil leasing. The Obama administration must now take seriously its obligation to re-think whether to allow risky industrial activities in the Chukchi Sea. As Shell’s problems have clearly demonstrated, companies are not ready to drill in the Arctic Ocean.”

Background:

The Chukchi Sea is part of America’s Arctic Ocean north of Alaska. It is home to iconic species such as polar bears, walrus, beluga whales, bowhead whales, and seals. It is also home to vibrant Alaska Native communities that have depended for millennia on the ocean for their subsistence way of life. The region is warming at twice the rate of the rest of the world, putting tremendous strain on its wildlife and people. There is currently no oil and gas development in the Chukchi Sea. The Chukchi Sea and its coast are remote—the coast contains only four small communities that are not connected to a road system, lack deep-water harbors, and can only be reached by plane or, in summer, by boat. The region is hundreds of miles from the nearest coast-guard station and lacks rescue and oil spill response capacity.

The Chukchi Sea lease sale, Sale 193, was originally held in 2008 by the Bush administration. It offered nearly 30 million acres in the Chukchi Sea for oil drilling—an area larger than the size of Pennsylvania. Prior to the lease sale, there were no active oil leases in the sea. In 2010 The Federal District Court in Alaska determined that the original lease sale violated the National Environmental Protection Act, one of the foundations of U.S. environmental law, because the Department of Interior had failed to address the widely recognized gaps in what is known about nearly every species in the Chukchi Sea. It required the agency to reconsider the decision. In October 2011, the Obama administration also decided to reaffirm the lease sale, despite the acknowledged gaps in information. The District Court upheld the Obama administration's affirmation of the lease sale. The appeal decided today followed.

The Court today agreed with the groups that the Department of Interior failed adequately to analyze the potentially dramatic environmental effects of the sale before offering the leases. It determined that the agency had analyzed "only the best case scenario for environmental harm, assuming oil development," and that this analysis "skews the data toward fewer environmental impacts, and thus impedes a full and fair discussion of the potential effects of the project." The agency will have to revise or supplement its analysis for the lease sale once again and must reconsider its lease sale decision.
