First Families: A Photographic History of California Indians L. Frank and Kim Hogeland

Experience the living history of California Indians

When L. Frank and Marina Drummer went on the road in 2002, they set out to visit as many people from different California tribes as possible. Crisscrossing the state, they taped hundreds of hours of interviews and collected copies of nearly fifteen hundred family photos. The documentary project, funded by the California State Library and LEF Foundation, paints an unprecedented portrait of California's indigenous people using their own words and photographs from their own family albums.

In turns moody, beautiful, warm, and humorous, First Families is a one-of-a-kind book that combines extremely personal images with text that gives readers a broader, deeper view of Indian history and many complex living cultures.

From "Seafood"

The original foods of the Coast Miwuk, Pomo, and surrounding tribal people were mostly from the varied plants, mammals, fish, and fowl that inhabited their own homelands. The exception for my mother's Dry Creek people was the much sought-after seafood from the coastal tribes, and the reverse was true for the coastal people, who traveled inland to gather needed plants.

In the early 1900s, when Elizabeth Dollar, my aunt Belle, was a young girl, she lived with her grandparents Juana Cook and "Old Joe" Bill (Joseph Billy). In 1965 Aunt Belle described to linguist Robert Oswalt the trips she took to the coast with her grandparents to get seafood for winter. They camped on the beach at Fort Ross, where there is a freshwater stream and protective trees grow along that stream. Aunt Belle and her grandparents made two or three trips to the coast, starting in March, when the beach strawberries and seaweed were ready to be gathered, and staying two or three weeks at a time. >>

Michele Brooks | Assistant Superintendent
Office of Family and Student Engagement,
Boston Public Schools

The day Michele Brooks "lost it" as the frustrated mother of a Boston high school student became a moment that forever transformed her life.

That was 20 years ago, and today Brooks works inside the Boston Public Schools as the assistant superintendent in charge of the district's Office of Family and Student Engagement.

Brooks is credited with strategically aligning Boston's family-engagement efforts with the district's academic goals, which moved the work of her office from a peripheral activity to one that is central to the needs of the district's 57,000 students and their families.

FACT SHEET: Opportunity For All : Establishing a New “Made In Rural America” Export and Investment Initiative

Today, the President directed his Administration, working through the White House Rural Council, to lead a new “Made in Rural America” export and investment initiative. This initiative is charged with bringing together federal resources to help rural businesses and leaders take advantage of new investment opportunities and access new customers and markets abroad.

Specifically, the President has instructed his Rural Council – in coordination with the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the U.S. Department of Commerce, the Small Business Administration, the Export-Import Bank, the Office of the United States Trade Representative, and other agencies – to commit to connecting more rural businesses of all types to export information and assistance through a comprehensive strategy including the following specific commitments, to be provided over the next nine months:

- Host five “Made in Rural America” regional forums dedicated to promoting rural exports by providing rural leaders and businesses with information about federal and other resources available to help expand exports. Working with local partners including the National Association of Counties (NACo), the Delta Regional Authority, and the Appalachian Regional Commission, these export-focused regional forums will help rural businesses take advantage of new market opportunities by providing training from experienced exporters and federal officials on the basics of exporting, accessing federal support, and participating in major trade events and trade shows across the country, as well as overseas trade missions.
- Convene an “Investing in Rural America” conference later this year to connect major investors with rural business leaders, high-level government officials, economic development experts, and other partners. This conference, hosted by the White House Rural Council in coordination with the Department of Agriculture and other partners, will promote opportunities to invest in Rural America by highlighting successful projects in energy; biofuels and bioproducts; infrastructure, from transportation to water systems to telecommunications; healthcare; manufacturing; and local and regional food systems.
- Host training sessions to equip local USDA Rural Development staff in all 50 states plus territories with the tools they need to counsel businesses on export opportunities and resources. The Department of Commerce, through the Trade Promotion Coordinating Committee, will cross-train USDA Rural Development staff so they can better deliver support or refer rural businesses to federal services.
- Provide enhanced export counseling for rural businesses to connect with foreign buyers through the Department of Commerce’s U.S. Export Assistance Center trade specialists in over 100 domestic locations and in collaboration with the U.S. Department of Agriculture’s field staff.
- Coordinate across the Administration to promote rural-produced goods and services at trade events including trade missions, buyer programs, trade shows, and other promotion programs.

➤ Educate local leaders across the country on the importance of rural exports in partnership with NACo and through the Trade Promotion Coordinating Committee in order to connect these leaders with federal resources and information to better support rural businesses to develop their potential for exporting.

➤ Use the BusinessUSA online platform to better connect rural businesses with export and investment resources and coordinate support from across the federal government.

BusinessUSA was launched by the President last year to serve as a “one-stop-shop” that matches businesses and entrepreneurs to the full range of services and resources available to them at every stage of development.

Material Support for Community Volunteer Projects

The Home Depot Community Impact Grants Program

The Home Depot Community Impact Grants Program provides support to nonprofit organizations and public service agencies in the U.S. that are using the power of volunteers to improve the physical health of their communities. Proposals for the following community improvement activities will be considered: repairs, refurbishments, and modifications to low-income and/or transitional veteran's housing or community facilities (schools, community centers, senior centers, etc.); weatherizing or increasing energy efficiency of low-income and/or transitional veteran's housing or community facilities; engaging veterans as volunteers to help other veterans in their community through service projects focusing on the renovation, repair, and improvement of homes and other properties serving veterans; and planting trees or community gardens and/or landscaping community facilities that serve veterans. Priority is given to projects for veterans that include housing repairs, modifications, and weatherization work. Grants of up to $5,000 are made in the form of The Home Depot gift cards for the purchase of tools, materials, or services. Requests will be accepted from February 1 through August 15, 2014. Visit the Home Depot website to submit an online application.

Food Programs for Native American Elders Funded

First Nations Development Institute: Native American Food Security

The First Nations Development Institute invests in innovative institutions and models that strengthen asset control and support economic development for American Indian people and their communities. The First Nation's Native American Food Security project will provide four to five grants, ranging from $20,000 to $25,000, to organizations working to eliminate food insecurity among tribal elders in rural and/or reservation-based Native American communities. This project will assist organizations in ensuring adequate food supplies for the senior population of their communities, with a particular focus on locally-grown, healthy foods. The project will also assist in the development or expansion of locally-controlled and locally-based food systems that provide healthy foods to senior community members while also supporting local food producers and the local economy. The application deadline is March 14, 2014. Visit the First Nation's website to review the request for proposals and submit an online application.

Grants Address Wildlife Adaptation to Climate Change

Wildlife Conservation Society North America Program: Climate Adaptation Fund

The Wildlife Conservation Society (WCS) North America Program is dedicated to saving wildlife and wild places in North America. The WCS Climate Adaptation Fund, with funding from the Doris Duke Charitable Foundation, supports projects that demonstrate effective interventions for wildlife adaptation to climate change. Grants of $50,000 to $250,000 are provided to nonprofit conservation organizations for applied, on-the-ground projects focused on implementing priority conservation actions for climate adaptation at a landscape scale. The Fund prioritizes projects that manage for dynamic ecological processes, landscape functionality, and species assemblages, rather than those aimed at maintaining historic conditions or individual species. Grants are provided to U.S.-based nonprofit conservation organizations for projects within the 50 states and six U.S. territories. Pre-proposal application forms are due March 14, 2014. Visit the WCS website to download the Request for Proposals.

Contemporary Concert Music Programs Supported

The Amphion Foundation

The purpose of the Amphion Foundation is to promote excellence in, and public appreciation of, contemporary concert music, particularly by American composers. Grants are provided to publicly-supported nonprofit performing ensembles, presenters, and music service organizations that have a history of substantial commitment to contemporary concert music at a high level of excellence. In general, grants range between $1,000 and $7,500, although larger grants may be awarded to larger performing organizations with an extraordinary commitment to contemporary concert music or a particularly significant project. Applying organizations must have been in existence for at least two years, and have completed two full seasons of programming prior to the time of application. Applications will be accepted from February 7 through April 1, 2014. Visit the Foundation's website for grant program guidelines.

Grants Promote Employment Programs for New Jersey Residents with Disabilities

Kessler Foundation: Community Employment Grant Program

The Kessler Foundation is dedicated to improving the lives of people with mobility disabilities caused by stroke, multiple sclerosis, injuries to the brain and spinal cord, and other chronic conditions. The Foundation's Community Employment Grant Program provides support to nonprofit organizations for projects, capacity building, pilot initiatives, and creative solutions that focus on job placement, education, training, and retention for New Jersey citizens with disabilities. Examples of funding priorities include transition to work for youth and adults, employment-related transportation issues, and vocational training and workplace preparation. Grants range from $25,000 to $50,000. The application deadline is March 14, 2014. Visit the Foundation's website to submit an online application.

Support for Sustainable Communities in the Pacific Northwest

Bullitt Foundation

The mission of the Bullitt Foundation is to safeguard the natural environment by promoting responsible human activities and sustainable communities in the Pacific Northwest, including Washington, Oregon, Idaho, western Montana, coastal Alaska from Cook Inlet to the Canadian border, and British Columbia. The Foundation's current focus is on the following programs: The Urban Ecology program strives to advance policies to create affordable, diverse, healthy, and environmentally beneficial communities. The Ecosystem Services program aims to protect the ability of nature to sustain healthy urban communities and a sound economy. The Energy, Industry, and Technology program promotes policies and actions to harness the entrepreneurial power of business to create competitive industries built on ecological principles and sustainable technologies. The Leadership and Civic Engagement program works to nurture leadership, strengthen organizations, and broaden the coalition to create a more dynamic constituency for environmental responsibility. Proposal inquiry forms should be submitted by March 15, 2014, to be considered for the May 1, 2014, proposal deadline. Visit the Foundation's website for detailed information about each of the grantmaking programs.

Health Programs in New York State Funded

New York State Health Foundation: Special Projects Fund

The New York State Health Foundation is dedicated to improving the health of New York State residents. The Special Projects Fund supports programs that fit the Foundation's mission, but are outside the three priority areas of expanding healthcare coverage, improving the prevention of diabetes, and advancing primary care. While projects that have impact within one organization or community are eligible, priority is given to initiatives that have a large scale statewide or region-wide impact on New York State's healthcare system. Special Projects Fund grants range from $50,000 to $400,000, with an average of $250,000. The online inquiry form must be submitted by April 10, 2014; full applications are due June 6, 2014. Visit the Foundation's website to download the Request for Proposals.
