Who was the first President?

I've never heard this before!

I suspect George Washington was your first guess.

After all, who else comes to mind?

But think back to your history books - The United States declared its independence in 1776, yet George Washington did not take Office until April 30, 1789.

So who was running the country during these initial years of our young country? It was the first eight U. S. Presidents. In fact, the first President of the United States was one John Hanson. I can hear you now - John who? John Hanson, was the first President of the United States.

John Hanson, first President of the United States.

Check Google for more detailed information. There was also a U.S. stamp made in his honor.

The new country was actually formed on March 1, 1781 with the adoption of The Articles of Confederation. This document was actually proposed on June 11, 1776, but not agreed upon by Congress until November 15, 1777. Maryland refused to sign this document until Virginia and New York ceded their western lands (Maryland was afraid that these states would gain too much power in the new government from such large amounts of land).

Once the signing took place in 1781, a President was needed to run the country. John Hanson was chosen unanimously by Congress (which included George Washington). In fact, all the other potential candidates refused to run against him, as he was a major player in the revolution and an extremely influential member of Congress.

As the first President, Hanson had quite the shoes to fill. No one had ever been President and the role was poorly defined. His actions in office would set precedent for all future Presidents. He took office just as the Revolutionary War ended. Almost immediately, the troops demanded to be paid. As would be expected after any long war, there were no funds to meet the salaries. As a result, the soldiers threatened to overthrow the new government and put Washington on the throne as a monarch.

All the members of Congress ran for their lives, leaving Hanson as the only guy left running the government. He somehow managed to calm the troops down and hold the country together. If he had failed, the government would have fallen almost immediately and everyone would have been bowing to King Washington.

Hanson, as President, ordered all foreign troops off American soil, as well as the removal of all foreign flags. This was quite the feat, considering the fact that so many European countries had a stake in the United States since the days following Columbus.

Hanson established the Great Seal of the United States, which all Presidents have since been required to use on all official documents.

President Hanson also established the first Treasury Department, the first Secretary of War, and the first Foreign Affairs Department.

Lastly, he declared that the fourth Thursday of every November was to be Thanksgiving Day, which is still true today.

The Articles of Confederation only allowed a President to serve a one year term during any three year period, so Hanson actually accomplished quite a bit in such little time. Seven other presidents were elected after him:

1. John Hanson
  2. Elias Boudinot (1782-83),
  3. Thomas Mifflin (1783-84),
  4. Richard Henry Lee (1784-85),
  5. John Hancock (1785-86),
  6. Nathan Gorman (1786-87),
  7. Arthur St. Clair (1787-88), and
  8. Cyrus Griffin (1788-89),
- ...all prior to George Washington taking office.

So what happened? Why don't we hear about the first eight presidents?
It's quite simple - The Articles of Confederation didn't work well. The individual states had too much power and nothing could be agreed upon. A new doctrine needed to be written - something we know as the Constitution.

And that leads us to the end of our story.

George Washington definitely was not the first President of the United States. He was the first President of the United States under the Constitution we follow today.

And the first eight Presidents have been forgotten in history.

YOU HAVE TO BE A LOVER OF HISTORY TO APPRECIATE THIS!!

There you are - another lesson in U.S. History, and you may have learned something new today.

Two things you need to do every day

1) Learn something new

2) Start your day with something you enjoy

Oil industry sinkhole threatens to swallow city

Parts of the New Mexico town near Carlsbad Caverns National Park could collapse because of irresponsible extraction practices by the oil industry.

Related on MNN: Rescuers dig our from monstrous sinkhole in Guatemala

"U.S. 285 south subject to sinkhole 1,000 feet ahead," reads a bright yellow sign along the stretch of highway heading through Carlsbad, N.M.

Normally a motorist driving through the area might not find a sign like that unusual. The city is, after all, home to Carlsbad Caverns National Park, a network of some of the largest natural caverns in North America. But on this occasion, the sign's sharp colors make the message clear: what's happening in Carlsbad is not natural.

In fact, the massive sinkhole currently running through the center of town was created by the oil industry. As MSNBC reports, it was formed over three decades as oil field service companies pumped fresh water into a salt layer more than 400 feet below the surface and extracted several million barrels of brine to help with drilling.

If it collapses, the unnatural cavern is likely to take with it a church, a highway, several businesses and a trailer park. Massive fissures currently cleave through town, and one business owner has said that structural cracks have even formed in his store.

"It would be like a bomb going off in the middle of town," said Jim Griswold, a hydrologist with the New Mexico Oil Conservation Division. The problem is so severe that the Eddy County Commission declared a state of emergency last Thursday, and they hope that state and federal funds will arrive in time to fill the cavern before it collapses.

Alarms placed to monitor the sinkhole should give authorities at least a few hours' warning to evacuate Carlsbad's residents in the event of an imminent cave-in, but the costs of the sinkhole might already be inevitable. Damages to local crops could exceed $100 million.

In regular industry fashion, the oil field service

A year ago, the FCC announced reform of Form 477 – a data submission form required from all telecommunications and broadband providers. The new Form 477 data requirements are expanded to include broadband inventory data. With this action the FCC addresses the pending conclusion of the SBI grant program in the fall of 2014, and ensures continuity of the National Broadband Map. Following the June 2013 Order, the FCC proceeded to seek approval from the Office of Management and Budget and complete other administrative steps needed to implement the new data requirements. Upon completion of these steps, the FCC announced yesterday the timeframe for the next submission of Form 477 data, which will open on July 31, 2014, and close on October 1, 2014. Lindsey

Thanks to everyone who cast their votes in our Spring 2014 round of People & Planet Awards. Below, please meet our three winners, who each will be using their $5,000 prize to make their green businesses even greener. (Kermit must be thrilled)

At the same time, we invite you to nominate a business to participate in the upcoming summer round of awards. The next award cycle will feature businesses that specialize in products or services for raising green kids.

You could nominate a maker of organic and sweatshop-free clothing for children, a green toy company, a green child-care center or summer camp, a company specializing in green baby products, or any "green kids" business you can think of. Thanks for nominating!

Special thanks to GreenChoice Bank in Chicago; Self-Help Credit Union in Durham, NC; and Hope Credit Union in Jackson, MS, who nominated the above winners. For the spring contest, we featured nominees selected from among the green-business clients of the community development banks and credit unions in our business network.

These banks and credit unions make it their mission to lift up local communities. When you shift your checking or savings account to them, your everyday banking can help businesses like Feed Earth Now, FLS Energy, and Mauthe's Progress Milk Barn find the funding they need to survive and thrive.

"Without these financial groups taking a chance on our company and the renewable energy industry as a whole, companies like ours would not exist," says Dale Freudenberger, CEO of FLS Energy. And loans from Hope Community Credit Union were critical for helping Mauthe's Progress, an organic dairy, bounce back after Hurricane Katrina. To shift your banking to a more community-focused institution, consult our directory at www.breakupwithyourmegabank.org.

Thanks for all you do, Alisa Gravitz, President, Green America

P.S. Some community development banks and credit unions offer credit-card services.

You can use your everyday purchasing power to support mission-driven banks and credit unions like those listed above, when you switch to one of the green credit cards featured by our Take Charge of Your Card campaign.
