One day Thomas Edison came home and gave a paper to his mother. He told her, "My teacher gave this paper to me and told me to only give it to my mother."

His mother's eyes were tearful as she read the letter out loud to her child: Your son is a genius. This school is too small for him and doesn't have enough good teachers for training him. Please teach him yourself.

Many, many years after Edison's mother died and he was now one of the greatest inventors of the century, one day he was looking through old family things. Suddenly he saw a folded paper in the corner of a drawer in a desk. He took it and opened it up. On the paper was written: Your son is addled [mentally ill]. We won't let him come to school any more.

Edison cried for hours and then he wrote in his diary: "Thomas Alva Edison was an addled child that, by a hero mother, became the genius of the century."

Jessica Lyon, Attorney, Division of Privacy and Identity Protection, Federal Trade Commission

Bill Fanelli , Chief Security Officer, Council of Better Business Bureaus

Kelvin Coleman , Branch Chief, Government Engagement, Cybersecurity & Communications, Department of Homeland Security

Join the National Cyber Security Alliance, the U.S. Department of Homeland Security, the Council of Better Business Bureaus and the Federal Trade Commission for a 1-hour webinar to discuss cybersecurity and online safety for small businesses.

All businesses face a number of cybersecurity challenges, like being the target of cybercriminals, having intellectual property stolen or being attacked to disrupt our way of life. Cybersecurity must become a priority for every business and every industry. Companies need to proactively protect their most vital assets, employees and customers.

Employees have a shared responsibility to do their part – especially as the traditional workplace changes with a mobile workforce, telecommuting and the blurring of lines between work and personal devices (BYOD).

If a cybersecurity incident does occur, businesses need to readily respond, recover and collaborate with law enforcement by sharing threat information and aiding investigations

This webinar will discuss the security landscape for businesses and highlight resources and programs available to help businesses establish cultures of cybersecurity.

Greetings! We are very excited to welcome Native authors Leanne Howe and Arigon Starr to Reno this upcoming week. Both will be hosting different events and we would really like the community to be able to take part. The events are outlined as follows:

Arigon Starr will be performing at Sammy;s Showroom at Harrah's in Reno on October 14th at 8:00pm

Leanne Howe will be performing at 8:00pm on October 15th

Both are interested in meeting with the Native community while they are here and have expressed interest in as many community members attending their show as possible. I have attached a poster and article to share with community members and if anyone is interested in attending the show on October 14th, I have a select number of free tickets. If interested in tickets, please contact me no later than Friday, October 9th to reserve a ticket. They will need to be picked up no later than Monday, October 12th. Let's give both artists a warm welcome to our community. Have a great day!

Literary types to gather in Reno

Graphic novelist and musician Arizon Starr, and writer, professor and activist LeAnne Howe will highlight the 50th annual conference of the Western Literature Association in Reno Oct. 14-17.

The conference theme is Visual Culture in the Urban West.

Starr, a member of the Kickapoo tribe of Oklahoma, has won a Best Independent Recording Award from the Native American Music Awards for her CD "Meet the Diva," among other awards. She'll perform at the conference at 8 p.m. Oct. 14.

Howe, a member of the Choctaw Nation and an award-winning writer, will receive the association's Distinguished Achievement Award and will read from her work at 8 p.m. Oct. 15.

They'll both appear in Sammy's Showroom at Harrah's Reno. The public is invited to attend the events.

"We are particularly proud to present Arizon Starr and LeAnne Howe in a showroom specially constructed by Bill Harrah for his friend Sammy Davis, Jr.," said David Fenimore, Western Literature Association co-president, who teaches at the University of Nevada, Reno.

"As an African-American performer in the '50s and early '60s, Davis wasn't allowed to stay at Harrah's or mingle with his audiences, and as Native Americans, neither of our distinguished guests would have been welcome in those days either," Fenimore said. "It's a nice historical irony."

Both Starr and Howe hope to visit local Native communities and meet with tribal members during their visit to Reno.

Starr is the creator of the graphic novel "Super Indian." In addition to "Meet the Diva," she has recorded the CD "Wind-Up," which contains the song "Junior Frybread," which was named song/single of the year at the Native American Music Awards.

She also has won awards as an actress and playwright.

Howe is the Eidson Distinguished Professor in the Department of English at the University of Georgia. Her book, "Shell Shaker," received the Before Columbus Foundation's American Book Award for 2002. "Evidence of Red," a collection of poetry, won the Oklahoma Book Award in 2006.

Writer LeAnne Howe (Photo: Provided to the RJG)

Her latest books, "Miko Kings: An Indian Baseball Story," "Seeing Red: Pixelated Skins: American Indians and Film," and "Choctalking On Other Realities," led to her being awarded the first Modern Language Association Prize for Studies in Native American Literatures, Cultures and Language in 2015.

In addition to Starr and Howe, the conference will host native Reno author and musician Willy Vlautin who will read his work in the showroom at 3 p.m. Oct. 16.

The family of Nevada writer Robert Laxalt, who died in 2001, will accept the Distinguished Achievement Award for Laxalt. Laxalt wrote 17 books, including "Sweet Promised Land," a nonfiction account of his father's immigrant experience.

Laxalt's daughter Monique Laxalt and David Rio of the University of the Basque Country, who translated "Sweet Promised Land" into Spanish, will speak during the award presentation at a 5 p.m. Oct. 15 in Harrah's Convention Center.

Previous award winners include western American writers Cormac McCarthy, Wallace Stegner, Gary Snyder and Sherman Alexie.

Puget Sound Cleanup

Denny Heck (D-WA) introduced the PUGET SOS Act, a bill to lift the stature of the Pacific Northwest ecosystem to the same level as the Great Lakes and the Chesapeake Bay. That means more federal attention to the sound's cold waters, which in turn means more committees.

The bill would establish an office within the EPA to coordinate federal activities related to the Puget Sound. It would establish a federal agency task force, a sort of roundtable for discussion among all the partners. It also would establish a tribal advisory committee and a state advisory committee.
