Youth Practicum: The NAFWS

Southwest Region is now accepting applications for the 19th Annual Natural Resources

Youth Practicum. It will be held in

Angel Fire, New Mexico (Pueblo of Sandia) from June 20-24, 2016.

Students will get a "hands-on"

learning experience in natural resource management with combined classroom and field sessions. It is open to all incoming 10th-12th graders. The deadline to apply is May 27, 2016. It is open to high school students from Arizona,

Colorado, Utah, Nevada, New

Mexico and southern California.

Please contact either Norman Jojola

(505-753-1451;

norman.jojola@bia.gov) or Jeanne Lubbering (505-281-7694; petlbtj@higher-speed.net). This practicum is free of charge for students selected to attend. Schurz students should contact me for an application if interested.

Upcoming French Auction of Native American Items

The French auction company known commonly as EVE will be auctioning American Indian and Alaska Native objects on May 30, 2016. There are many objects that may be of concern to Native people.

The URL is: <http://www.auctioneve.com/html/index.jsp?id=26939&lng=fr&npp=10000>

As you'll see, the catalog is in French so here is one quick way to translate into English:

1. Find the item's Lot number that you are interested in and open that Lot description
2. Highlight the French description text and "copy"
3. Open a new web browser page for the translation. Google's URL is <https://translate.google.com/>
Click here to go to Google translate
4. Paste French description into the box and the translation appear in a new box on the right Questions? Please contact me.

- Many of the items from the southwest are referred to as "Pueblo," rather than a specific tribe as in prior auctions.
- Lot 206, " JACKET 'WARRIOR' or 'scalps'" includes human hair
- The Interior and State Departments have been working with interested tribal governments to try and stop these types of sales, though with limited success. However, expressing your concerns about these sales is very important. If you are interested in talking with an Interior official on any Lot(s) in this upcoming auction, please contact Eric Bruce Wilson, International Affairs Coordinator, Office of the Assistant Secretary - Indian Affairs, U.S. Department of the Interior, Washington. Phone: (202) 384-6330

Many, many generations ago, long before the Creator had completed the fashioning of the magnificent cliffs in the Valley of Ahwahnee, there dwelt in the arid desert around Mono Lake an Indian couple. Learning of the beautiful and fertile Valley of Ahwahnee, they decided to go there and make it their dwelling place. They began their journey into the Sierra Nevada towards Yosemite Valley, he carrying deer skins, and she holding a baby cradle in her arms and carrying a (wono) basket on her back. When the couple reached the site of present-day Mirror Lake, they began to quarrel. She wanted to go back to Mono Lake, but he refused, saying that no oaks or other trees grew there. He would not listen to her when she said she would plant seeds.

In despair, the girl began to cry and ran back toward the Paiute homeland of Mono Lake. Her husband grew angry and ran after her. To escape she threw the wono basket at him and it became Basket Dome. She continued running and threw the baby cradle at her husband. Today, we experience it as the Royal Arches. Because they had brought anger into Yosemite, the Creator became upset at the couple. The Creator in his anger turned the two into stone. He became North Dome and she became what we know as Half Dome. The Mono Lake Paiute girl regretted the quarrel and the rock wall she became, Half Dome, began to cry, thus forming Mirror Lake.

Today, you can still see the marks of those tears as they run down her face. And if you look very carefully at Half Dome, you can see it is fashioned after the way the Mono tribe looked, hair bobbed and cut in bangs. Her rock face stained with tears facing eastward towards their ancient homeland of Mono Lake.

In olden times the first white explorers called her South Dome, later Half Dome, but in Paiute she is known as T'ssiyakka or the English pronunciation Tissayack.

Keystone pipeline still a pain in nation's butt

By Katie Herzog on May 11, 2016

Will it ever end?

Six months after President Obama nixed the Keystone XL pipeline — a decision it took him seven years to reach — Keystone is back in the news.

The Hill reports that the U.S. Chamber of Commerce — along with Kansas, Montana, Nebraska, Oklahoma, South Dakota, and Texas — filed briefs this week in support of a lawsuit against the Obama administration. Pipeline company TransCanada filed the suit in federal court in January, arguing that Obama exceeded his constitutional authority when he denied a permit for Keystone. (Also in January, TransCanada filed a separate claim under NAFTA arguing that the U.S. should pay the company more than $15 billion to compensate it for “costs and damages that it has suffered” because of Obama’s decision. Boo hoo.)

In the newly filed briefs, the states argue that by rejecting the pipeline, the president dampened employment opportunities. These so-called “employment opportunities” were an oft-cited argument in favor of building the pipeline, but the State Department estimated that Keystone would have created as few as 20 permanent jobs.

Maybe the states could just open one Arby’s and call it even.
