"Little Savages" Oil on Canvas/Mixed media. 20"×24" This painting is about the racism, cruelty and genocidal tactics that were used against the Northern Paiute people during the 1800s and continuing to this day. This painting shows the beauty and strength of our women, and the intelligence and promise of our future generations. The background is newspaper clippings from the 1800s about how we were seen by the invaders of our lands. All for the love of gold. Today our land, water and pine nut trees are continually in jeopardy. The vultures are still ready to pounce, the fight continues.

Preservation Assistance Grants (Discretionary)

CFDA Number(s):45.149 -- Promotion of the Humanities_Division of Preservation and Access

Original Closing Date for Applications: May 03, 2016

Agency Name: National Endowment for the Humanities

Preservation Assistance Grants help small and mid-sized institutions—such as libraries, museums, historical societies, archival repositories, cultural organizations, town and county records offices, and colleges and universities—improve their ability to preserve and care for their significant humanities collections. These may include special collections of books and journals, archives and manuscripts, prints and photographs, moving images, sound recordings, architectural and cartographic records, decorative and fine art objects, textiles, archaeological and ethnographic artifacts, furniture, historical objects, and digital materials. Applicants must draw on the knowledge of consultants whose preservation skills and experience are related to the types of collections and the nature of the activities on which their projects focus. Within the conservation field, for example, conservators usually specialize in the care of specific types of collections, such as objects, paper, or paintings. Applicants should therefore choose a conservator whose specialty is appropriate for the nature of their collections. Similarly, when assessing the preservation needs of library, museum, or archival holdings, applicants must seek a consultant specifically knowledgeable about the preservation of these types of collections. The program encourages applications from small and mid-sized institutions that have never received an NEH grant. The program also encourages applications from presidentially designated institutions (Hispanic-serving institutions, Historically Black Colleges and Universities, and Tribal Colleges and Universities), and from Native American tribes with significant humanities collections.

Preservation and Access Education and Training Grants

CFDA): 45.149 -- Promotion of the Humanities_Division of Preservation and Access

Closing Date for Applications: May 03, 2016

Agency Name: National Endowment for the Humanities

The Preservation and Access Education and Training program is central to NEH's efforts to preserve and establish access to cultural heritage collections. Thousands of libraries, archives, museums, and historical organizations across the country maintain important collections of books and manuscripts, photographs, sound recordings and moving images, archaeological and ethnographic artifacts, art and material culture collections, electronic records, and digital objects. The challenge of preserving and making accessible such large and diverse holdings is enormous, and the need for knowledgeable staff is significant and ongoing. Preservation and Access Education and Training grants are awarded to organizations that offer national or regional education and training programs that reach audiences in more than one state. Grants aim to help the staff of cultural institutions, large and small, obtain the knowledge and skills needed to serve as effective stewards of humanities collections. Grants also support educational programs that prepare the next generation of preservation professionals, as well as projects that introduce the staff of cultural institutions to new information and advances in preservation and access practices.

ENVIRONMENT: Worries rising as Colorado River water runs low

Aaron Orlowski, Press Enterprise

For the past five years, as the drought drained California's water sources and depleted its reservoirs, Southern California water managers have relied increasingly on the region's largest out-of-state water source: the Colorado River.

'HISTORICALLY DRY' FEBRUARY COULD LEAD TO FIRST-EVER SHORTAGE DECLARATION AT LAKE MEAD

Federal forecasters have downgraded their projections for the Colorado River after an unusually hot, dry February that has increased the likelihood of a first-ever shortage declaration at Lake Mead. <http://erj.reviewjournal.com/ct/uz3688753Biz28312550>

TRIBES DECIDE HOW TO SPEND INDIAN HOUSING BLOCK GRANTS; A LEGACY OF SOVEREIGNTY ACT: Mark Fogarty, ICT; 3/6/16

Read more at <http://indiancountrytodaymedianetwork.com/2016/03/06/tribes-decide-how-spend-indian-housing-block-grants-legacy-sovereignty-act-163642>

HUD's Indian Housing Block Grant (IHBG) program provides funding for American Indian projects. The Administration fiscal 2017 budget calls for an increase in IHBG money to $700 million. HUD has just now announced the allocation for fiscal 2016, $660 million to 587 tribes in 35 states. Eligible activities for the funds include housing development, assistance to housing developed under the Indian Housing Program of the 1937 Housing Act, housing services to eligible families and individuals, housing management services, crime prevention and safety, and model activities. IHBG funds are allocated to tribes or their tribally-designated housing entities (TDHEs) based on a formula. The biggest allocation for 2016 is to the country's largest tribe, the Navajo Nation. The Arizona-based Navajo will receive $86.4 million in IHBG money for fiscal 2016. On the other end of the scale, many of the smallest tribes received the smallest allocation of $50,282. IHBG funds can be leveraged to bring additional housing funds to the table from private or other public sources.

The Pueblo of Nambe in New Mexico was awarded $84,450 for FY 2016. And, in the recent past it has leveraged outside money for housing from state, federal and private sources to build houses near the tribal bison range. This long-term project (it is envisioned as happening over 10 years) has received infrastructure money from the state of New Mexico and plans to have private sector mortgages issued by banks using HUD's section 184 Indian mortgage guarantee program. Since the beginning of the program, tribes have used NAHASDA funds to build, buy, or rehab more than 100,000 homes, according to HUD.
