

Journal #3724 from sdc 9.16.16

This edition is turning into another special re Standing Rock. The news, stories and perspectives keep coming - and are too important to not include and document.

It is an important and critical time, one in which each reader should ask themselves how this "situation" will affect them, if their tribe's leases, right of ways and water resources are updated and intact, and what their personal commitment is to Standing Rock as well as Indian Country in general.

This is the interim between provocation, violence and seeing who will blink first. This is the time to dig in and be a "standing rock". It is a time to teach younger generations and the general public the history and legal convolutions that converge before our eyes.....and the consequences that will follow. It is the time to live and lead from the heart, to bring the understanding of the past into the energy of creating the future. sdc

desperately RIGHT NOW to seize control of Indigenous Unification...

If you listen carefully, our Indigenous Grandmothers,
whether Lakota
Debra
White Plume,
Anishnaabe
Josephine Mandamin or Ongwehonweh, seldom talk about the confusing and contentious
"climate change".
Our Grandmothers
ALWAYS TALK ABOUT

THE WATER. Water is Life and that is obvious.

Some people are trying desperately RIGHT NOW to seize control of Indigenous Unification and use it for their ultimately money grubbing nonsense about CLIMATE CHANGE. This is a fraud and should not be tied to Indigenous Struggles in the way that it is. Use your analytical skills people!!! Don't be used.

Remember, historically as in the War of 1812 and more recently at Elsipogtog, Indigenous people are on the front lines taking all the heat
while the phoney cowards hang back.

We don't have any faith or belief that the colonial authorities will do
the right thing.
We can hope and wish but realistically, come on now! In this case, they need to be confronted and shamed, even outgoing presidents who are acting tactically to promote their party interests.

☐Obama, Hear Our Cry☐: Lakota Women Call on President to Stop Violence
Brave Heart Society
9/9/16

Editor☐s Note: This open letter to President Obama was generated by women of the Brave Heart Society, White Buffalo Calf Woman Society and Stone Boy Society.

OCETI SAKOWIN TERRITORY☐A revived traditional society of Ihanktonwan women, the Brave Heart Society, is calling on President Obama to intervene in the horrific incident at Standing Rock in which vicious dogs and pepper spray were used by Dakota Access Pipeline security to attack protectors of sacred sites near Cannon Ball, North Dakota.

A pregnant Native woman and child were attacked and six people were bitten by pit pulls and German shepherds, while 30 others were pepper-sprayed by DAPL security. This could have resulted in a crime of infanticide if the protectors had not stood their ground in a peaceful manner.

Infanticide is a crime that has been a part of Indigenous Peoples' lives for the last 500 years in the Americas. Brave Heart's demand for justice is joined by two other Lakota Women Societies: the White Buffalo Calf Woman Society on the Sicangu Reservation in Rosebud, S.D. and the Stone Boy Society on the Oglala Lakota reservation in Pine Ridge.

It is no accident in ancestral memory that attacks by security dogs occurred on the anniversary of the September 3, 1863 Whitestone Massacre where more than 250 women and children were killed in a surprise attack by General Alfred Sully in a campaign sweep from the Minnesota Wars. Many of the descendants of Cannonball, Crow Creek and Ihanktonwanna/Ihanktonwan bands are descendants of the Whitestone Massacre.

The video released by media, including Democracy Now producer Amy Goodman, demonstrates the security company provoking water protectors, which included many women. This escalation is an example of the war of bio-politics being waged on indigenous homelands all across the Americas.

Bio-politics occurs when human life processes are managed under regimes of authority over knowledge, power and subjectivation. In other words, our indigenous bodies, which are essentially a direct reflection of Mother Earth, have been and continue to be controlled by corporations and governments that operate for profit without regard for human life.

The North Dakota and area public utility companies reflect a brand of settler colonialism which has no regard for the lives of Native people who resided in these lands before they were stolen in government-sponsored land thefts or condemnation. In order for settler colonialism to exist, Indigenous Peoples have to disappear—whether that's graves, land, water or our bodies.

A prime example is the destruction of the rare cultural sites near the Oceti Sakowin Protector Camp, which are of a multi-component, multi-nation and multi-generational nature. They were simply erased by a bulldozer. Imperialism of the worst kind. The test on September 6 was to see whether a federal court judge would understand cultural impacts of this destruction. We prayed for justice but once again the court reflected Manifest Destiny, giving free license to DAPL to continue destroying sacred sites on private lands. North Dakota burial laws were not even addressed.

The cries of the protectors heard at the Cannonball on September 3 are the cries of past and current trauma and genocide. All of this is endorsed by North Dakota Governor Jack Dalrymple and local North Dakota county officials. This assault with dangerous methods against our people is justified by state, county and city officials. It is criminal behavior, nothing less. We remember that the Spaniards in 1493 used dogs to attack

Natives nothing has changed.

As a Dakota/Nakota Okodakiciye (society) we are compelled to condemn this severe attack of unbelievable proportions, as it is a repeat of our history. It is common knowledge that one out of three Native women will be raped or assaulted by abusers who are not Native.

Although DAPL has not promoted man camps as Keystone XL did, we know that many of these workers have been absorbed into surrounding campgrounds and present a threatening presence to an already impacted population. The rates of young Native women involved in sex trafficking in areas impacted by oil development is often as high as 40 percent of those identified as being trafficked.

The Violence Against Women Act was enacted to enable tribal courts to prosecute domestic violence offenders who are non-Native. Perhaps the VAWA language should be amended to include prosecution against non-Natives who attack pregnant women and children with deadly weapons. A Michigan Court has established that causing a dog to attack and harm another individual is an attack with a deadly weapon. That's exactly what occurred on the anniversary of the Whitestone Massacre.

Perhaps the bad man clause of the 1868 Ft. Laramie Treaty should be invoked. The clause states that If bad men among the whites commit any wrong upon the person or authority of the Indians, the United States will be tried and punished according to its laws. In this case, the United States chooses to protect those who destroy sacred sites.

The Brave Heart grandmothers are reeling from the blatant destruction of sacred sites by DAPL after these sites were identified according to National Historic Preservation Act standards, relating to Section 106. Brave Heart is personally shaken, because in the old days this Society retrieved the dead from battlefield and re-interred relatives into the ground from the old scaffolds and oversaw the protection of remains. One had to have a Brave Heart to do so.

The Brave Heart Society was an important presence in the defeat of Keystone XL and also oversaw the protection of remains at White Swan on the Missouri River in 1999-2000 and, along with the Yankton Sioux Tribe, won a Section 106 foreclosure for the protection of the White Swan burial area. The Yankton/Ihanktonwan are close dialect relatives of the Cannonball Ihanktonwan and camped near each other throughout the Oceti Sakowin history and share cultural sites. We share the hurt and anger by the destruction of these most sacred sites. However, we stand with a sense of peace achieved through spiritual activism and deep prayer grounded in non-violence.

We will never be erased.

We are mindful that in this historic rebirth of the Oceti Sakowin, each and every camp member has a role to play. Brave Heart's and other women societies' roles are to give voice to the protection of women and children, who often are on the frontlines, to stop theft and destruction of our sacred water and land, as was done against Keystone XL.

White Buffalo Calf Woman Society, founded nearly 40 years ago, was the first Native women's domestic violence shelter in the nation, and was a presence in promoting the Violence Against Women Act. Stone Boy Society is a culture-based traditional society dedicated to preserving and teaching the culture of the Lakota peoples for the future. We are at a dangerous intersect in history where a security company has been given permission to attack women and children; this is unacceptable. Brave Heart Society has been contacted by a Chicano group in Los Angeles who are outraged at the use of dogs, triggering their own ancestral experience with the Spanish.

Naca (leader) Sitting Bull of the Hunkpapa voiced his concern while he was a prisoner at Fort Randall. He said he feared most for the women and children, as he knew the consequences of war. In war, women and children are disposable. The Native nations of the Oceti Sakowin and beyond know that we are in a war to save our land and water. Without safe water we are nothing.

As Ella Cara Deloria, Yankton ethnographer of the early 1900s, said:
[A] We are not afraid. We have relatives. [A] This is reflected by the thousands of Native peoples showing up at the Cannonball camps who have responded to the need to protect water, cultural and ceremonial sites, and preserve the human rights of all tribes.

The grandmothers, our Kunsis of Brave Heart, White Buffalo Calf Woman Society and Stone Boy Society, are asking President Obama to require the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and other federal agencies to live up to their trust responsibility and stop this pipeline immediately. Our children deserve a thorough Environmental Impact Statement based on meaningful tribal consultation.

We are not invisible and will not be erased. We invite nations with large indigenous populations to support our rights defined in the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples. Tell the United States to stop the destruction on sacred lands and water. We further strongly invite municipal water districts that draw on the Missouri River as a drinking water source to gain courage and protect the very water that they are selling.

If there ever was a time to recognize trust responsibility with tribes, it is now, and we invite Presidential Candidate Hillary Clinton to do so. Our ancestors are proud of us, stand with us. Honor your relationship with the "Sympathy is easy. You have sympathy for starving children swatting at flies on the late-night commercials. Sympathy is easy because it comes from a position of power.

Empathy is getting down on your knees and looking someone else in the eye, and realizing that you could be them, and that all that separates you is luck."

Global Climate Convergence

Dear Friend,

The courageous actions of the Standing Rock Sioux Tribe and the indigenous communities, climate activists, local farmers and community members that continue to oppose the Dakota Access Pipeline project in North Dakota have inspired people all over the country and the world to stand in solidarity and support. If the pipeline project is allowed to continue, it will carry dangerous fracked oil over several states and under the Missouri River - this means destruction of sacred land and water for local Native communities and a climate disaster for people and the planet.

We stand in solidarity with those on the frontlines of nonviolent resistance against the Dakota Access Pipeline, and encourage you to get active in any way you can to support the fight.

Yesterday was a #NoDAPL National Day of Action, but if you couldn't attend an event in your area, you can still answer the Call to Support the Standing Rock Sioux Tribe by taking the time to contact your congressional representative, U.S. senator, the White House and the Army Corps of Engineers demanding they oppose the Dakota Access Pipeline.

Additionally, there is still time to take part in the #NoDAPL Solidarity Global Weeks of Action called for by the Camp of Sacred Stones and the Red Warrior Camp and happening through September 17.

Current targets for solidarity actions include the companies working to build the Dakota Access Pipeline, the financial institutions responsible for the money behind the project and the contractor constructing the pipeline.

Click here to access a map of some of the offices of target locations and click here to find solidarity actions happening near you.

No matter how you choose to stand with Standing Rock, we thank you for doing your part to help keep this important fight for climate democracy alive and support this indigenous led movement for people, planet and peace over profit.

CITIGROUP = CUT FUNDING FOR THE DAKOTA ACCESS PIPELINE

The "Dakota Access" Pipeline (DAPL) is a $3.6B, 1,700 mile fracked-oil pipeline currently under construction from the Bakken shale fields of North Dakota to Peoria, Illinois. DAPL is slated to cross Lakota Treaty Territory at the Standing Rock Sioux Reservation where it would be laid underneath the Missouri River, the longest river on the continent.

Construction of the DAPL would impact many sites that are sacred to the Standing Rock Sioux and other indigenous nations, as well as endanger a source of fresh water for the Standing Rock Sioux and 8 million people living downstream. DAPL would also trigger a renewed fracking frenzy in the Bakken shale region.

The companies building DAPL were able to secure a $2.5 billion loan from a collection of banks, spearheaded by Citigroup, to build the pipeline. But the pipeline companies can only access $1.1 billion of this loan until certain progress is made on the pipeline project.

We are calling on these lenders to cut off this line of credit to the pipeline companies and stop funding the DAPL.

CALL CITIGROUP INVESTOR RELATIONS AT 866-291-4261 AND TELL THEM TO RESPECT INDIGENOUS COMMUNITIES AND CUT FUNDING TO THE DAKOTA ACCESS PIPELINE!

And from our Minnesota correspondent:

The Dakota Access pipeline (DAPL) is a grave danger to public health.

The pipeline will carry tons of crude oil every day under the Standing Rock Sioux Tribe's major water source. This poses a huge threat to safe drinking water, as pipelines frequently break and spill oil.

Twin Cities activists are demanding that the law firm that represents Dakota Access, LLC stop doing business with a corporation that poisons Indigenous communities for profit.

Take action to stand with Standing Rock: Call the law firm representing Dakota Access, LLC, and demand they drop them as a client. Here is the phone number and sample script:

Call Fredrikson & Byron Law Firm 612.492.7000

The Dakota Access Pipeline puts all our health at risk. This project is irresponsible and dangerous. Do not help move it forward. Drop Dakota Access as a client.

After making the call, please take a quick moment to fill out this form and let us know how the call went.

Corporations must not be allowed to wreak havoc on the environment and public health. We must do everything within our power to hold them accountable.

Because of the strength of the solidarity movement at Standing Rock, President Obama temporarily halted construction on a small stretch of the pipeline. It's time to keep the pressure on every entity, public or private, that is moving this dangerous project forward.

Call the law firm representing Dakota Access, LLC, and demand they drop them as a client.

MoneyMen & OilMen behind DAPL

From the Eagle Watch September 14, 2016

Yesterday I did some scouring to find out more about the people behind DAPL. Solidarity rallies and marches were taking place in cities including Toronto and Winnipeg. And unbeknownst to many of us, North Dakota law enforcement were attacking protectors of the water, land and air at Standing Rock on the Missouri River. They arrested several people and took them away. Roads are closed and communications are wobbling. There could be a blackout at any time. Help spread the word NOW.

To me, it's always about the people. The elitists tend to hide while other people are on the front lines doing their dirty work for a pay cheque. The corporatists themselves need to face up to Reality.

I did a bit of research on ETP Energy Transfer Partners, their related companies like Energy Transfer Equity, Sunoco and Enbridge and their sneaky convoluted financial arrangements with each other and the big banks like Wells Fargo, CitiBank, Bank of America, HSBC, UBS, Goldman Sachs and JPMorgan Chase. as well as Canadian banks RBC, TD and Scotiabank and other banks like Royal Bank of Scotland, Bank of Tokyo, Sumitomo Mitsui Bank, Credit Suisse and BNP Paribas.

Kelsey Warren the Chairman of ETP and ETE, put out a threatening statement Tuesday while his goons were moving in on the protectors of the land and water at Standing Rock on the Missouri River. He made it clear, "We are committed to completing construction and safely operating the Dakota Access Pipeline within the confines of the law." This is double speak. They plan to do whatever it takes.

To his employees he wrote, "Help explain to your friends and neighbors the facts about the work that you are doing. There has been an enormous amount of misinformation out there and you are our best ambassadors to the public."

We already know that employees of oil & gas industry are brainwashed to contend with the growing opposition, especially against pipelines.

Warren is a big shot in Texas, cozy with present and past governors of the state. Former Governor of Texas, James "Rick" Perry is a Director at ETP. During his reign, he signed over 150 death warrants for Texas death row prisoners, mostly African Americans who couldn't afford a good lawyer. He took a shot at the presidency but failed.

Perry was LG Lieutenant Governor when George Bush was Governor of Texas.

The Bush family created a myth that they are from Texas when really they are original New England elite colonialists. You see how the ties between these guys are tight but yet rotten to the core.

Warren and his wife both got cushy state board postings from the current Texas governor, Greg Abbott. Of course, these plums don't come free. Warren is one of the biggest political contributors to all things Republican and Oil in Texas.

All the various directors and executives in these unrelenting corporations deserve some attention.

Look how Ontario's premier Wynne freaked out when activists put some flowers in her driveway. She was outraged that someone should bring the struggle to her doorstep. Meanwhile, many people deal every day with the effects of over priced hydro rates, increasingly expensive food that is often not very good and keeping a roof over our heads and protecting our children. Health care and education seem to elude more and more people.

Here's another director. I got dizzy looking at all his corporate activities and connections. Check this out:

Career oil man, K. Rick Turner, is an Independent director at ETE Energy Transfer Equity and Sunoco GP LLC.

Rick Turner, age 57, is a moneyman supreme involved in many aspects and an incredible number of companies in the oil & gas industry as well as in financing and juggling. He mostly serves his own interests in Canadian & US firms not limited to the oil & gas industry. His home base is 105 East First Street, Hinsdale, Illinois 60521, Phone: 630-206-4040. Is that where DAPL is supposed to end up? That's actually the office for his private company LLD Holdings, LLC. Here's another number for Rick Turner: 501-377-2217

A couple of Turner's interests stand out. He's a director at North American Energy Partners NAEP. NAEP and North American Construction are two related companies based in Edmonton. They do the hands on stuff like creating tailings ponds in the oil sands, stripping, muskeg removal and overburden removal and digging and destroying natural habitat and Indigenous sacred sites all over the place.

Ricky Boy has ties to Stephens Group where he used to work. Stephens Group which has various handles for its many money managing tasks such as SF Holding Corp, also has ownership in NAEP. The Stephens family outfit has been going strong since 1933 and is allied with other like minded groups in what may be called a money cartel. Juggling money is the only way to make money nowadays. You don't make much money actually working.

Ricky Boy is involved with Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co. based in London, and actually part of KPMG, based in Amsterdam, global money managers and financial advisers, auditors and control freaks.

Some top US government officials like Howard J. Krongard, US State Dept Inspector Gen'l and former Treasurer of the US, 1983-89, Katherine D.

Ortega are either executives or employed at Peat.

This is just another example of how the power boys operate and how inter related they are. Even Mark Zuckerberg, founder and owner of Facebook has shares in this pipeline and other oil interests. The US DOD is the biggest single buyer of petroleum fuels.

It should give us an indication of the real brutality and morbid determination we face as we protect the water, air and land & the Future of the Seven Generations.
