I, Chief Arvol Looking Horse, of the Lakota, Dakota, and Nakota Nations, ask you to understand an Indigenous perspective on what has happened in America, what we call "Turtle Island." My words seek to unite the global community through a message from our sacred ceremonies to unite spiritually, each in our own ways of beliefs in the Creator.

We have been warned from ancient prophecies of these times we live in today, but have also been given a very important message about a solution to turn these terrible times.

To understand the depth of this message you must recognize the importance of Sacred Sites and realize the interconnectedness of what is happening today, in reflection of the continued massacres that are occurring on other lands and our own Intergenerational Trauma: Understanding Natives' Inherited Pain

Shadows of secrecy begin to spread across federal government

WASHINGTON (AP) - There are cracks in the curtains President Donald Trump tried to draw around the government early in his presidency, but the slivers of light aren't making it easier to hold federal officials accountable for their actions. Trump still refuses to divest from his real estate and hotel empire or release virtually any of his tax returns. His administration is vigorously pursuing whistleblowers. Among scores of vacant senior jobs in the government is an inspector gener...

Across US, lawmakers chip away at public's access to records

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) - In February, Arkansas lawmakers marked the 50-year anniversary of the Freedom of Information Act with a resolution calling it "a shining example of open government" that had ensured access to vital public records for generations. They spent the following weeks debating and, in many cases approving, new exemptions to the law in what critics called an unprecedented attack on the public's right to know. When they were finished, universities c...

Introducing the Food and Land Use Coalition

Tuesday September 19, 2017

1:15-2:30 p.m. EDT

United Nations Secretariat Building, Conference Room 2

750 1st Avenue

New York, NY 10017

This event will introduce the Food and Land Use Coalition (FOLU), which aims to develop global and national targets and pathways towards sustainable land-use and food systems, identify and support business solutions and implement national and local solutions to the complex challenge of transforming the food and land use systems.

Speakers include:

- Vidar Helgesen, Minister of Climate and Environment, Norway
- Svein Tore Holsether, CEO, Yara International
- Sara Menker, Founder and CEO, Gro Intelligence
- Paul Polman, CEO, Unilever
- Gunhild Stordalen, Founder and President, EAT Foundation

The Food and Land Use Coalition (FOLU) was initiated by the Business and Sustainable Development Commission, the New Climate Economy leadership and the EAT Foundation among others. It is a self-governing coalition that has evolved with a sense of urgency from forward-thinking organizations reaching out to each other to try and address the complexity of the food and land use systems and create a mission-aligned community. With over 30 members already, it includes ambitious businesses, forward-thinking policy makers, foundations, investors, academics, international organizations and members of civil society.

The meeting will be hosted by the Norwegian Government, the EAT Foundation and Yara. Collaborating partners are the Sustainable Development Solutions Network (SDSN), International Institute for Applied Systems Analysis (IIASA), World Business Council for Sustainable Development (WBCSD), SYSTEMIQ and World Resources Institute (WRI).

Please feel free to extend an invitation to colleagues or guests who may be interested in the event, although note that all participants must be registered in advance.
