BIA (RG 75) Records: Alabama/Alaska

This guide is arranged geographically by state and thereunder contains a listing of tribes and bands living within that state's borders. Under each entry for a tribe or band is a list of the BIA offices which had a jurisdictional relationship with that tribe, and for which the National Archives holds records. The NARA facility which has records for that office is listed in parentheses next to the entry. We have provided direct links into the National Archives Catalog whenever possible for each of these agencies, office, and/or superintendencies. For each, the National Archives Catalog has tallied the number of descriptions and series available. Note, the National Archives Catalog may include multiple derivations of the agencies, offices, and superintendies name.

It has been impossible to include the name of every subagency and special agency. The most significant omissions are the agencies and subagencies established during the early years of a superintendency, when agents were moved about without permanent assignments to a particular tribe or locality.

Alaska

The United States purchased Alaska from Russia on October 26, 1867. Alaska was admitted as a state in 1959. Between 1867 and 1959, Alaska Natives were regulated by the Alaska Territorial Government (now the state of Alaska). In 1885, the Alaska Division of the Office of Education was established to provide education for all children in Alaska, many of whom were Native. In 1971, the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act established Village Corporations, which own surrounding lands privately. Therefore those areas are not overseen in any special way by the Federal government, except by an occasional special census. With a few exceptions, the Bureau of Indian Affairs was largely responsible for Native Alaska health, education, and both natural and economic resource management.

University of Nevada will confer two honorary degrees and five Distinguished Nevadan citations during its 74th commencement exercises Monday, June 1, President Charles J. Armstrong has announced. As approved by the board of regents, an honorary Doctor of Laws degree will be presented to Governor Grant Sawyer, and a Doctor of Science degree to Franklin Secord Wartman, noted metallurgist from Boulder City. Named to receive Distinguished Nevadan awards were Richard E Barrington, a native Nevadan, now a resident of Sierraville, Calif.; Robert Beach Griffith, prominent Las Vegas. MAY FULSTONE Doctor Degrees Scheduled For Gov. Sawyer, Wartman Richard E. Barrington, the first Indian child to be enrolled in the Stewart Indian School and a member of that school's first graduating class in 1901, will be honored with a Distinguished Nevadan award during commencement activities. Mr. Barrington, now retired, owned and operated lumber in Quincy, and Sierraville, Calif, for over 20 years. Before his graduation from Stewart, Barrington spent two the Carlisle Indian School in Pennsylvania as a member of the famous Indian Band which toured the United States. Barrington has spent many years working for the betterment of his people. His son, Lloyd graduated from the University of Nevada in 1927.

June 1, 1964 (NSJ) Barrington Honored By Dances There was an added attraction last night at the second annual formal dinner given by Molly Magee and the University honoring Distinguished Nevadan and honorary degree recipients who will take part in today's University of Nevada commencement exercises. It was a selection of Indian dances performed in honor of Richard E. Barrington, a native Nevadan who now makes his home in Sierraville, Calif., and an Indian himself. Barrington was a member of the first graduating class at the Stewart Indian School. When Billy Williams, leader of the Indian dancers, learned Mrs. Magee, a member of the board of regents, was giving the dinner he asked if his group might perform. Williams told Mrs. Magee he particularly wanted to have a part in the dinner because he once was a student of Barrington himself. Mrs. Magee agreed it was a splendid idea. So after 38 persons finished dinner in the Holiday Hotel, a curtain was drawn and Billy Williams and his dancers entertained with a number of authentic Indian dances. Governor In Audience In the audience was Gov. Grant Sawyer, commencement speaker who will receive an honorary doctor of law degree, and Barrington's fellow Distinguished Nevadans, Ralph Lattin of Fallon and Dr. Mary Fulstone of Smith Valley. Mrs. Magee initiated the dinner last year to fill a social vacuum for the families of persons being honored by the university at commencement.

Why Disappearing Sierra Nevada Meadows Are Bad News for Water

Matt Weiser, News Deeply – Water Deeply

Meadows play an important role in water storage and flood prevention. But a new study shows that warming temperatures and resulting tree encroachment could doom these landscapes, except at very high elevations.

EPA News

Superfund Mismanagement

The EPA is allowing Superfund cleanups to lag because of a mismatch between staff assignments and projects that require work, according to an inspector general's report. Some regional offices have either slowed down or stopped cleanup work because of inadequate staff.

EPA officials requested the evaluation. Though the request came during the Obama administration, the findings are useful for Administrator Scott Pruitt's goal of speeding up Superfund cleanups. The EPA agreed with all recommendations that the inspector general proposed. On the Radar

Confirmation Hearing Postponed

The Senate Committee on Environment and Public Works postponed a September 20 confirmation hearing for four EPA assistant administrators, including the Wisconsin lawyer nominated to lead the Office of Water. The hearing has not been rescheduled.

Public Hearings Scheduled for Pebble Mine Determination

The EPA will hold two hearings in Alaska to gather public comments on its proposal to reopen the Pebble deposit for mining. The Pebble deposit, rich in copper and gold, is upstream of Bristol Bay, one of the world's great salmon fisheries. The Obama administration withdrew the area from mining development in 2014.

Administrator Scott Pruitt ordered the EPA to revoke the mining ban earlier this year. He did so “within hours” of a meeting, on May 1, with the CEO of the mining company that seeks to develop Pebble, according to emails obtained by CNN.

The hearings are October 11 in Dillingham and October 12 in Iliamna. Written public comments are being accepted through October 17 and should be submitted at www.regulations.gov referencing docket number EPA-R10-OW-2017-0369.

Water Infrastructure Hearing

On September 26, the House Transportation and Infrastructure Committee invites mayors, utility directors, and analysts to discuss the state of the nation's water systems. Those testifying include the mayor of Hallandale Beach, Florida; the executive director of Chicago's wastewater utility; the CEO of Aqua America, a publicly traded water company; and others.

EPA to Move Environmental Justice Office

The agency plans to shift the Environmental Justice Office from the Office of Enforcement Compliance Assurance to the Office of Policy. Agency officials will hold a call on September 26th at 3:30 p.m. Eastern to discuss the move. The dial-in number is 844-567-8594.
