SIGN THE PETITION - Make Your Voice Heard: No to DAPL

We know the NODAPL movement means a lot to you, and to Indian Country. We want to make sure your voice is heard! Please sign the petition, letting the United States Army Corps of Engineers, Dakota Access, the courts, and especially the Standing Rock and Cheyenne River Sioux Tribes know that we stand in solidarity with the Tribes in this ongoing battle. Support the honoring of tribal treaty rights, fishing and hunting rights, and the existence of tribal lifeways. Stand with Standing Rock.

The NODAPL fight continues in the courts. Yesterday was the deadline for the Standing Rock Sioux and Cheyenne River Sioux Tribes to submit their briefs to the court in response to the United States Army Corps of Engineers and Dakota Access, LLC, as the court decides if the pipeline should shut down while a new environmental study is considered to evaluate the potential damage a spill will cause. NARF has been supporting the NODAPL case through the courts by submitting information to support the tribe's position on shutting down the pipeline.

The Standing Rock Lawsuit Started a Year Ago. Here's Where We Are Now

Yessenia Funes, YES! Magazine: On July 27, 2016, the Standing Rock Sioux filed a lawsuit against the Army Corps of Engineers for authorizing the construction of the 1,772-mile Dakota Access pipeline. Just over a year later, the project has been completed even as the case is still pending. Read the Article

Oregon warns that Willamette Steelhead face extinction

Associated Press

State officials warned Monday that if California sea lions continue feeding below Willamette Falls, they could push winter steelhead trout to the brink of extinction.

*A draft report by scientists from 13 federal agencies concludes that every corner of the United States has been impacted by climate change, and estimates that the average annual temperature in the United States will increase by 5.0 to 7.5 degrees Fahrenheit in the next 75 years. Although the report has not been officially released to the public, the 673-page draft was leaked amid fears that the Trump administration would squelch the report's findings. Former Miss Central Navajo Pre-Teen Shares Her 'Canyon Life' on National Geographic Recently found this short doc featured on National Geographic's YouTube page. I know you guys will enjoy this!

Arizona's Canyon de Chelly National Monument is a place where many Navajo families come to reconnect with their roots.

The area was once inhabited by Ancient Puebloans and some believe that the ancestral spirits still remain. Every year, sisters Tonisha and Tonielle Draper spend time in the Canyon learning about their Navajo heritage from their father and grandmother.

In this short film from the National Park Experience, watch Tonisha share her knowledge in the Miss Central Navajo Pre-Teen pageant and continue the tribe's traditions for another generation.

These 3 Organizations Are Helping Native Youth Change Indian Country

We, as Indigenous people, have endured a lot throughout history. From Colonization, to the introduction of alcohol, all the way to the Indian removal act forcing us from our homes. So there's no doubt that due to that underlying trauma, our people suffer in many different ways. Many of our communities have a high poverty rate, as well as increased rates of suicide and substance abuse.

With all of those obstacles to overcome, a lot of Native Youth find themselves feeling not only helpless, but voiceless. But, in the wake of these dangers we are seeing more and more Native youth step up and use their voice to change Indian Country for the better.

Here's how three Indigenous Organizations are helping Native American Youth do just that.

John Muir is considered one of the founders of America's environmental movement. Muir was also a purist.

His vision for Yosemite was to see it as pristine and natural as possible and to keep it as natural as possible. But some have noted that John Muir's vision did not include the Native American population in Yosemite and the surroundings.

He wrote disparagingly about the Native's of Yosemite as he would encounter them. Muir's ideal of Yosemite was to keep Yosemite untouched, but he also saw the Indians of Yosemite as a hindrance to that ideal.

'This Land Is Our Land': Protect Gold Butte

The following is a transcript of the video.

Hillierie Patton, former employee of the Bureau of Land Management, North Las Vegas, Nevada: I never thought of myself as an outdoorsy person. I don't even like to get dirty.

But I love to go to Gold Butte. I love taking that drive out there. I love being there. I love everything about it. You'll see all these different shapes, but the best thing is when you look over, and you're actually seeing the blue of Lake Mead, and you combine that with the reds and the yellows.

Happy Birthday, Smithsonian

On August 10, 1846, President James K. Polk signed an Act of Congress establishing the Smithsonian Institution. Over our 171 year history, the Smithsonian has grown and evolved – not just with the creation of new museums and research centers, but also with traveling exhibitions, educational tools, digital collections and more.

This year, to celebrate the Smithsonian's birthday, we took a look through our archives to get a sense of how the Institution has changed over the years. Take a trip with us down memory lane and explore the history of the Institution that brings our shared history to life for thousands of people every day.

From the little-known to the downright wacky, there is so much to discover in the Smithsonian's history.

We hope you enjoy celebrating this milestone with us, and here's to 171 more years!

Sincerely,
John Perell, Director, Friends of the Smithsonian
