Archaeologists discover 81 ancient settlements in the Amazon

The Washington Post

A growing body of research suggests that the “pristine” rain forest was actually carefully managed by indigenous people for hundreds of years. Read the full story

Earliest Known Human Footprints in North America Found on Canadian Island

By NICHOLAS ST. FLEUR

Scientists found the preserved footprints to be 13,000 years old, and suggested they shored up a hypothesis that early settlers of North America traveled along the Pacific coast.

Utah Signs “Free Range” Parenting Bill Into Law

By Ryan Velez Those of us who follow food at all may think of chicken when it comes to the term free-range, but Madame Noire reports that thanks to a new bill signed in Utah, you may need to apply that term to your children also. On Friday, Gov. Gary Herbert signed bill SB65 that

News from the Roundhouse

The Berkeley Roundhouse is deeply saddened by the passing of artist James Luna (Puyoukitchum/Ipi/Mexican). In addition to being a tremendous performer and installation artist, he was a dear friend to many. We at Heyday have been fortunate enough to call him a friend as well. He graced the cover of News from Native California twice, and he valiantly served as the special art editor for the Spring 2014-15 issue of the magazine, titled "Saying Our Share: Surviving the Missions." In this issue California Native artists, leaders, and educators shared historical and current tribal experience in reference to Junípero Serra's mission system. We are grateful for James' brilliant vision for this. It had a lot of impact. Our thoughts and prayers go out to James Luna's family, friends, and community. We wish you all strength and comfort.

We are in the middle of producing the Spring 2018 issue of News from Native California magazine, and it's looking very powerful. This forthcoming special edition focuses on nature and environment, and Brittani Orona (Hoopa Valley Tribe) is our special guest editor. There are poems about special plants, essays about cultural burning, and a number of entries about water protection. Thank you so much to Humboldt Area Foundation's Native Cultures Fund for making this special issue possible. The magazine is scheduled to be published in mid-April. Subscribe here.

We are currently accepting submissions for the Summer 2018 issue of News from Native California. The deadline is May 1. Full details and guidelines for submissions can be found here.

If you will be out and about in tribal communities this spring, it would be great to see you! In Northern California on April 5-7, we will have a presence during the California Indian Conference as well as the Big Time & Social Gathering at Humboldt State University. We are also planning to be at the 16th California Indian Market on Saturday, May 19 hosted by the Tuolumne Band of Mi-wuk. We look forward to seeing you around!

The Roundhouse is so proud that we at Heyday are distributing the Chia Café Collective's book, Cooking the Native Way. Please save the date, as we are scheduled to host a talk and signing event from 1:00-4:00 p.m. on Sunday, April 29 at the Autry Museum of the American West in Los Angeles. RSVP to terria@heydaybooks.com.

We're Hiring!

An essential pillar of Heyday's publishing program is its celebration of California's natural history and environmental riches. Heyday has a long history of working closely with leading environmental organizations and writers to bring incisive, stirring books about California's natural history to the widest possible readership. Heyday seeks to fill this post with a candidate with strong editorial and grants-writing experience and skills and who moreover possesses the zest and vision to head this program. Based in Berkeley, this full-time position will report to Heyday's Executive Director and Publisher. Read more about this opportunity here.

North American environmental ministers are calling on youth to champion bold ideas for green growth to address the complex sustainability challenges we currently face. Visit cec.ideascale.com to submit your science, technology and business innovations and get the chance to present your idea to North America's top environmental officials, receive C$5,000 in project seed funding, and meet with experts at the Commission for Environmental Cooperation (CEC). Learn more here: <http://www.opportunitydesk.org/2018/01/20/cec-north-american-youth-innovation-challenge-2018/>

The CEC Youth Innovation Challenge is open to residents of Canada, Mexico and the United States (and its territories) aged 18-30. Participants are encouraged to look beyond incremental solutions and propose bold ideas to leapfrog to solutions that address the complex sustainability challenges facing North America. Ideas will be evaluated based on four criteria: innovation, impact, feasibility/replicability and profitability. Students and young entrepreneurs are invited to propose ideas on a broad range of green growth topics.

For more information, please contact:

NOAA Environmental Literacy Grants
Supporting the Education of K-12 Students and the Public for Community
Resilience – $2 million

Applications Due: April 6, 2018

For more information, click here!

Eligible Entities: State, local, and Indian tribal governments

The goal of this Federal Funding Opportunity (FFO) is to support the education of K-12 students and the public so they are knowledgeable of the ways in which their community can become more resilient to extreme weather events and/or other environmental hazards, and become involved in achieving that resilience.

Many U.S. communities are increasingly contending with issues related to preventing, withstanding, and recovering from disruptions caused by extreme weather, such as severe storms, tornadoes, hurricanes, flooding, heavy precipitation events, persistent drought, heat waves, increased global temperatures, acidification of the ocean, and sea level rise. These extreme weather and climate events put stress on infrastructure, ecological systems, and the humans that live in the impacted places.

Education projects focused on resilience enable and empower community members, including children and youth, to protect themselves and their communities from these hazards. Projects through these grants should build the environmental literacy necessary for communities to become more resilient to extreme weather and other environmental hazards they face. Project topics must relate to NOAA's mission in the areas of ocean, coastal, Great Lakes, weather, and climate sciences and stewardship and should focus on one or more of the goals of NOAA's Next Generation Strategic Plan: healthy oceans; weather-ready nation; climate adaptation and mitigation; and resilient coastal communities and economies.
