In Killers of the Flower Moon, David Grann revisits a shocking series of crimes in the 1920s in which dozens of people were murdered in cold blood. After oil was discovered beneath their land, the members of the Osage Indian Nation became the richest people per capita in the world, but then, one by one, the Osage began to be killed off. Those that dared to investigate the killings were themselves murdered. At this point, the FBI took up the case and with the Osage, they began to expose one of the most chilling conspiracies in American history. A book signing will follow the program.

NEWS RELEASE Tuesday, April 5, 2018 Las Vegas, Nevada

Native Community Action is sponsoring a Native American Ethnohistory Gathering at the UNLV Barrick Museum of Art theater, April 28th, 2018 from 3 pm – 7 pm. The event is to provide engagement with Native American tribal communities throughout the Great Basin. "The 10,000 year old stories and songs of the Shoshone people are literally, the unwritten history of the west" said, Ian Zabarte, Secretary of Native Community Action.

Native Community Action is a collaborative effort begun with tribal community and researchers from Clark University in the mid-1990s. The Nuclear Risk Management for Native Communities Project is one of the first research projects studying radiation exposure pathways. The mission of the Native Community Action is: "To preserve traditional histories, rights and benefits for Native Americans of the Great Basin pursuant to our customs and traditions by understanding, educating and managing nuclear risks threatening the people."

Native American oral history of continuing tribal life-ways provided the basis for legal contentions filed by Native Community Action at the Atomic Safety Licensing Board in Yucca Mountain licensing by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission arguing that, tribal exposure is excessive and the proposed nuclear waste repository should not go forward.

Other events planned include a Water Conference, Cultural Mapping, Winter Stories, Yucca Mountain Gathering, Fallon Cultural Sharing and a gathering at the University of Nevada Reno.

Portraits of Indigenous Women in Mexico, as They Wish to Be Seen

'Just' a farm kid is a job prospect extraordinaire

While attending a job fair last week where Taylor Newspapers manned a booth, I met lots of job seekers.

Some brought resumes. Others just moseyed by, picked up the free stuff on our table and asked a few questions.

But one young woman created a memory for me.

She was a senior in high school, seeking summer employment before starting to a community college in the fall.

"Are you hiring?" she asked.

We said probably not, but we're always looking for good resources, such as part-time photographers and writers.

"We'd be happy to take your resume," I told her.

Then she said something that stuck with me. "I'm afraid my resume wouldn't be too impressive," she said. "I've spent all my life working on my parents' farm. I go to school in the daytime and do chores morning and night."

Whoa.

I told her to go home and create a resume, and write down exactly what she had told me.

As a farm girl, one who has driven a tractor since she was 12, one who has cleaned out barns, scooped grain until her back ached, fed chickens, pigs, cattle and goats — this girl knows the meaning of work.

She knows about dependability and getting jobs done on time. The morning school bus won't wait until a farm kid finishes those chores. They'll be done on time or the young student will miss that all-important ride.

A young person who has put up hay, helped her dad and mother in the farrowing house or candled eggs has something more than words to jot on a resume.

Farm kids don't need to take art appreciation classes in school. They witness picturesque landscapes, sunrises and changes in seasons as they grow up.

They ride horses, drive four-wheelers and neatly stack big bales at the edge of meadows.

They fish in their ponds, learn to handle firearms and shoot deer, rabbits and turkeys.

They work as a family in the garden, raising, harvesting and canning their own vegetables.

Farm kids learn to keep good records on their livestock. When they raise and sell a 4-H calf, they can calculate the profit gained after deducting feed, vet medicines and other costs.

They typically know how to stand on their own two feet and give project talks, or give oral reasons for judging a class of lambs or swine.

Many of them earn leadership roles in church, 4-H or FFA, so they can moderate a meeting to perfection using Roberts

Rules of Order.

They learn early in life the tactics of conservation — how to keep topsoil from washing into Oklahoma; how to plant wind barriers and how to recognize grass-cheating weeds that need sprayed.

Any farm kid can handle a paint brush, spade a garden, pull worms from tomato plants, gather hen eggs, mow grass, groom animals and take one grain of wheat, bite down on it and determine if it's time to start the combine.

And, this girl thinks her resume might be lackluster?

Oh, I don't think so.

Put her to work in a hardware store, newspaper office or grocery store, and she will enter the front door looking for things to do.

It's that way with kids who grow up as farm and ranch kids.

Their resume is written on their foreheads and in their hearts.

They should never apologize.

Never.

The FY18 Choice Neighborhoods Planning Grants

The NOFA for the Choice Neighborhood Planning Grants was posted on www.grants.gov on April 10.

With this publication, HUD is making available up to $5,000,000 for Planning Grants, including Planning and Action Grants.

1. Planning Grants are two-year grants that assist communities with severely distressed public or HUD-assisted housing in developing a successful neighborhood transformation plan and building the support necessary for that plan to be successfully implemented.
2. Planning and Action Grants are three and a half year planning grants that pair planning with action. Experience shows that tangible actions taken early on help communities build momentum for further planning and the eventual transition from planning to implementation of that plan. These actions improve neighborhood confidence, which in turn sustains the community's energy, attracts more engagement and resources, and helps convince skeptical stakeholders that positive change is possible. Under these grants, the planning process activities would take place during the first 24 months of the grant period. The planning process will identify Action Activities that will be carried out during the latter portion of the grant period. Action Activities must build upon the planning for the target housing and neighborhood.

Applications are due on Tuesday, June 12, 2018. The NOFA and application package must be downloaded from the www.grants.gov site. Potential applicants should also check out the Choice Neighborhoods website, www.hud.gov/cn, for more information about the program. Questions about the NOFA may be submitted to ChoiceNeighborhoods@hud.gov.
