The Atlas Butterfly is the largest in the world.'

Jim Hansen has described this perfectly: "Have you ever tried to make a child eat something he didn't want to eat? That's what teaching unwilling learners is like. The reality is unless they have an appetite, you can set an entire banquet in front of them and it will go untouched.

The problem is that we are slipping into a world where we don't judge teachers by the banquet they prepare but by the appetites of the children at the table."

And with all the resources for learning and understanding available today, it is just not some kids are unwilling to think and learn!

Finding Frémont: Pathfinder of the West highlights Lt. John C. Frémont's 1842-44 expeditions to Oregon country and Alta California, Mexico, to map and describe the Oregon Trail. These heroic journeys established Frémont as the "Pathfinder," and set the stage for his public service as soldier and politician.

Ideas take center stage at Las Vegas Book Festival

Sure, it's about books. Lots and lots of books. But the Las Vegas Book Festival could just as well be named the Las Vegas Ideas Festival.

Though she is no longer with us, her thoughts and actions are. Wanted to share this note from Lois Kane who .....wanted to share reflections from a fellow AIO Ambassador, Elizabeth Woody: "Today I was impressed with thoughts that came to me via a man we called Capitan. He was a Nahuatl elder and spoke to us in our Mexico trip in the AIO program in 1993.

I mention what he shared with us in several essays. He told us the Aztec Calendar was a book that survived the burning of the massive libraries by the Spanish. As a stone tablet it went to the Vatican where it was discovered by a pope who was also an astronomer. He explain we were nearing one age and into another. The age of justice.

We cheered and he looked fiercely at us and asked, "You think Justice is easy?"

It would take our traditions, our love for our earth and family strength to make it through. It would determine our future as human beings if we taught others our ways, and spoke on behalf of those who could not.

Our children would be fortunate to live in the changing times, and they have to know what we take for granted. Those times are not easy. You know these times are our times.

This is now a point of pivot from the old status quo of only tens of centuries of oppression, compared to millennial tens of thousands of years of the ancient human connection to the earth and our relatives that are labeled wild.

We are all in the biosphere and it is changing so much, so quickly, we may not make it.

Remember. Recall. Reflect.

Speak. Write. Teach. Renew what needs renewal."

I also remember this man, this Nahuatl elder, who came in the room speaking in his native tongue for about 5 minutes or so and then he stops talking. He says, "You don't know what I'm saying, do you?"

We, of course, replied "No". He said, "That's because we are losing our languages." He said "How did you get here?"

Most of us unsure of what he was asking, sitting there probably with the deer in the headlights look, then he says, "On the blood of Mother Earth".

That was deep, hearing his words. When he started to talk about Mother Earth and Father Sun, we knew that they believed like we did. They were like us. So much knowledge and wisdom being shared with us that day.

And he confirmed a belief that we were all learning, as 21st century leaders, we are all indigenous (meaning come from this land) people, from the northern tip of the Americas to the southern tip of the Americas. We are all brown skinned people. The genocide and oppression that our people went through, their people went through. They have their own languages and cultural ways but we are all the same, they are like us.

Prior to seeing the Capitan, we were introduced to modern Mexico - government, business, etc as well. There are indigenous people in Mexico, like the Nahuatl, proud to be Indian but there are also people who have assimilated into the new world, that they call Meshicas (Mexicans who want to be like Americans), ashamed to be recognized as an Indian.

I got to thank Ladonna Harris and the AIO Ambassador Program for opening my eyes to the bigger picture and for sharing with us the thought that we, as indigenous leaders, should think outside of the box, outside of our reservation boundaries, outside of the invisible boundaries set up by other countries, that divide our people and begin thinking about how indigenous people could have an impact on the world.

The browning of America - how would we handle it? Is that time, now, right now? Is Idle No More just the beginning? These are all thoughts for us to ponder.

Lois George Kane, American Indian Ambassador, Class Of 1993.

We picked 3 of our favorite recycled book art projects to share and inspire you to DIY your own !
If you want to give it a try...look for our LIVE video tutorial with Hometalk here: <http://bit.ly/2jtjiPU>
We made this book art last year for our local university - but there's absolutely no reason why you can't recreate the same effect for your home.

It's simply a matter of folding and rolling the pages of books that are no longer being used for reading.

Seven states convene to discuss the future of the United States' Colorado River .

“There is clearly enough evidence that if we were to have another 2000 to 2004 kind of a multi-year drought, the system is in very serious trouble.” –Eric Kuhn, the former general manager of the Colorado River District, in reference to water shortages in the Colorado River Basin. Water supplies in the basin, which supports 40 million people across seven states, are slowly declining. Officials from the states are now negotiating new water deals in hopes of mitigating crisis. ### Urge Your Representative to Join the Congressional History Caucus

What actions can we take to support federal funding of the humanities, even as we keep an eye on Congress's appropriations discussions? As we fight to ensure that drastic cuts don't become law, our most important assets are our allies in Congress. That's why this is the perfect time to make a push for the Congressional History Caucus! The History Caucus is the brainchild of the National Coalition for History (NCH), of which SAA is a policy board member. It provides a forum for members of Congress to share their interest in history and to promote awareness of the subject on Capitol Hill. Find resources for contacting your representatives.
