Indian Community Development Block Grant Imminent Threat Program

Did you know that the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) is authorized to reserve a portion of ICDBG funds for Imminent Threat grants? IT grants are intended to address threats towards health or safety that require an immediate solution. The grant ceiling for IT grants are: $450,000 for disasters that are not Presidentially declared and $900,000 for Presidentially declared disasters, also referred to as Major Disaster Declarations by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA). A recent imminent threat (and funds usage) example is for a tribe that faced a sanitation deficiency from the erosion of the sea shore near their wastewater treatment plant. Grant funds were used to strengthen the eroded sections. Find out more HYPERLINK "https://wateroperator.us10.list-manage.com/track/click?u=8d16ba5b97dc0fd4e661dd11e&id=8a989794a3&e=153dd75d0f" \t "_blank" here.

HIGHLIGHTING THE IMPACTS OF THE FARM BILL ON TRIBAL ECONOMIES

The Farm Bill contains a number of provisions and programs that promote tribal agriculture and agribusiness, as well as infrastructure and economic development. While the bill supports the ability of tribes to serve as economic drivers in their regions, it also promotes much-needed food access and tribal government parity when it comes to hemp production, trade, and access to local markets. Key tribal economic development provisions from the Farm Bill are below:

Hemp Production: Legalizes industrial hemp farming and authorizes new tribal plans to self-regulate, develop, and expand hemp production; provides technical assistance to tribes in developing plans; and requires that states permit a tribe to transport hemp across a state so long as the hemp is lawfully produced under a tribal plan.

Refinancing Authority: Provides refinancing authority for some Rural Development programs currently within the Substantially Underserved Trust Areas (SUTA) designation.

Broadband: Provides for tribal priority, inclusion, and access to broadband programs, including the Community Connect program, to build infrastructure and economic development opportunities in Indian Country.

Federal Investments: Codifies and expands Tribal Promise Zone program authority in order to bring greater focus to federal investments in tribal communities in ways that stimulate local economic development.

Traditional Foods in Local Markets: Includes tribal eligibility for the Local Agriculture Market program to help tribes grow, process, and market Native foods.

Trade: Provides for increased support to include tribes in international U.S. trade delegations.

Micro-Loans: Authorizes and makes tribes eligible for micro-loans for local foods in food insecure areas.

Businesses and Infrastructure: Creates a Tribal Technical Assistance Office within Rural Development to support tribal governments applying for programs to build businesses and infrastructure.

Policy: Establishes a Tribal Advisory Council to the U.S. Department of Agriculture to advise the Secretary on tribal issues and policies.

My Solstice Wish

My solstice wish for you this year is this:
That your feet (and your heart) stay warm.
Don't let the world make you cold.
That you know how strong you are and that you stop doubting yourself.
That you are able to feel at-home, safe, and loved inside of your own skin.
That you find your purpose in life and that you go for it with everything that you are.
You were put here for a reason.
That you make time to enjoy the little things in life. Breathe them in.
Surround yourself with good people, bright souls, that make you feel wanted and loved.
And know that you are worth loving for exactly who you are. Let me repeat:
You are worth loving exactly as you are.
