Harrison Bryant, the Senior Pastor of the New Birth Ministry, has cautioned Christians against the practice of burning sage. Bryant held the practice as both witchcraft and satanic. Bryant when teaching the women of his church, on Monday, warned against it and asked them to stay away from the practice. The pastor [...]

I am slogging through Peter Skene Ogden and the Hudson's Bay Company by Gloria Griffin Cline (1074 - U of Oklahoma). (While rather academic, the 41 page bibliography gives anyone studying the Northwest a heady road map.) The story of corporate competition between HBC, the American Fur Company, and even the mexican interests, provides a stimulating view of the formation of capital interests that founded much of our financial life today, certainly set the stage for much of the geo-political struggles of the 1800's and carefully documents the interaction with tribes of the area. sdc

Inyo County: From “extinct” to “prolific”: How one private landowner’s vision saved an extinct desert fish and other desert animals: “‘Listen to the land’ is my mantra,” said Susan Sorrells, a 4th generation resident and owner of Shoshone, California. Sorrells grew up in Shoshone, a small desert town located on the edge of Death Valley in Inyo County, and always had a close connection with the natural world. “My family came here as pioneers in 1910,” she said. “Shoshone was one of the best places to grow up because it was surrounded by nature. I truly fell in love with the land and its people.” Integrating nature with community became a part of Sorrells’ and her husband Robby Haines’ vision for stewarding the land. As a gateway to Death Valley National Park, ecotourism became their economic engine. These conservation-minded efforts boosted financial sustainability and helped recover endangered species, particularly a type of fish once believed to be lost. ...” Read more from the US FWS here: Inyo County: From “extinct” to “prolific”: How one private landowner’s vision saved an extinct desert fish and other desert animals

Does your community have ordinances to deal with this?

The U.S. government is instructing coastal cities to evict people from flood-prone homes using eminent domain, or else lose a chance at funding that could help protect the cities against climate change. The decision placed upon cities is part of an initiative by the Army Corps of Engineers to minimize the number of people living in flood zones, but the use of eminent domain as a response is a highly controversial approach that has some cities resisting while others are cooperating with the Corps. But the illnesses and deaths that come from COVID-19 is not the worry of the strategists of capital. They are only concerned with damage to stock markets, profits and the capitalist economy. Indeed, I have heard it argued in the executive suites of finance capital that if lots of old, unproductive people die off, that could boost productivity because the young and productive will survive in greater numbers!

That's a classic early 19th century Malthusian solution to any crisis in capitalism. Unfortunately, for the followers of the reactionary parson Malthus, his theory that crises in capitalism are caused by overpopulation has been demolished, given the experience of the last 200 years. Nature may be involved in the virus epidemic, but the number of deaths depends on human action – the social structure of an economy; the level of medical infrastructure and resources and the policies of governments .

IMPORTANT UPDATE
SEND PICTURES ELECTRONICALLY
Here is an amendment to this suggestion.
---Send pictures or cards electronically to be printed and shared with nursing home residents
---Pictures can be posted on the walls to be viewed this way elderly people will not come in contact with them.

- *This idea was intended for healthy children who are home from school because their schools are closed. This offers a great lesson in compassion.
 - *Nobody is suggesting that anyone of any age should send germs to residents of nursing homes
 - *There has been no established time frame for how long the virus can stay alive on paper.
 - *So much is not known about this virus
- If someone has factual data about sending mail send me a link and I will update this post again. I thank everyone for their feedback.

Ed note: And in our reality, send these treasures electronically or along with Meals on Wheels or home check services. sdc
