Why Native Americans Are Getting COVID-19 Vaccines Faster

The Rosebud Sioux Tribe is vaccinating its community at rates faster than the rest of South Dakota. That mirrors a trend in Indian Country, which has been hard-hit by the coronavirus.

Nevada Rancher Sues To Block Lithium Mine Near Oregon Line

By The Associated Press

A longtime Nevada rancher is suing U.S. regulators over the approval of a lithium mine on federal rangeland he says would violate environmental laws.

Edward Bartell says the project also will undermine changes he has made in his own livestock grazing practices to help threatened fish and wildlife. His Bartell Ranch says in the lawsuit filed in federal court in Reno last week that the Bureau of Land Management relied “entirely upon flawed and error-laden findings” in assessments prepared by the mine’s own contractor. The lawsuit says the mine proposed by Lithium Americas would lower the groundwater table, harm federally protected trout and sage grouse and transform private lands into barren desert.

Large Public Lands Bill Under Consideration

By Nate Hegyi, Mountain West News Bureau

Next week, the U.S. House of Representatives will consider passing a massive public lands package. It's called the Protecting America's Wilderness and Public Lands Act.

It would create more than half a million acres of wilderness in Colorado. It would also permanently ban new oil and gas drilling across parts of the American West, and it would forever stop uranium mining near Grand Canyon National Park.

Arizona Democratic congressman Raul Grijalva has been pushing for that since 2008.

"It's time to protect the Grand Canyon and the many tribal communities, Arizonans, and people across this nation who depend on the waters and who also see it as an irreplaceable landscape and as a monument to this country and to this world," Grijalva said during a press conference about two years ago.

Some House Republicans are balking at the package. They call it a federal land grab that will hurt Western families who rely on the oil, gas and mining industries.

Sen. Catherine Cortez Masto (D-NV) will help direct policy over public lands and other issues relevant to the Silver State as chair of the Energy and Natural Resources Committee's Public Lands, Forests, and Mining Subcommittee during the current two-year legislative session.

Scholarship Information and Scams

The Community Foundation of Northern Nevada has 34 scholarship funds open for applications. Funds award scholarships to graduating high school students, student attending college, and to re-entry adults. Students who are looking for a scholarship to help pay for a 2 or 4-year degree or an applied technologies/career education certificate are encouraged to apply.

Visit <https://nevadafund.org/scholarships/> for details.

Unfortunately, there are many scholarship scams as well. Here are some red flags for scholarship scams:

- If a scholarship charges a fee, it is usually a scam.
- Be incredibly cautious of scholarships asking for your bank account number, Social Security Number, credit card number, or other personal information.
- The scholarship claims to be sponsored by the U.S. Department of Education. The Department of Education and other federal agencies do not endorse scholarships or businesses.

As work is underway to distribute and administer COVID-19 vaccines, I want to inform you that ONAP grant funds can be used to assist Tribal communities with vaccination efforts. I am hopeful that with all our combined resources and efforts, we will be able to make significant progress in the fight against the virus.

From HUD: IHBG-CARES and FY 2020 IHBG Grants

Pursuant to the public health services waiver in PIH Notice 2020-33, Tribes and tribally designated housing entities (TDHEs) may use their Indian Housing Block Grant CARES Act (IHBG-CARES) funds and FY 2020 IHBG funds to carry out a wide range of public health services designed to prevent, prepare for, and respond to COVID-19. With respect to vaccinations, this includes, but is not limited to, the following:

- paying the transportation costs to get IHBG-assisted families and staff to and from a vaccination site;
- coordinating with health clinics to provide on-site vaccinations either at a Tribal or TDHE owned or operated location or at a mutually agreed upon location;
- paying the costs of providing public health information to staff and residents so they can learn about the benefits of getting vaccinated and how to get vaccinated;
- supporting IHBG-assisted families and staff with online registration for vaccination appointments and keeping them informed as vaccination efforts continue; and

ICDBG-CARES and FY 2019/2020 ICDBG Grants

Indian Community Development Block Grant CARES Act (ICDBG-CARES) funds and FY2019 and FY2020 ICDBG funds may also be used to carry out various activities to further the vaccination effort, provided that the grant recipient receives HUD approval before undertaking the activity. This includes, but is not limited to, the following activities:

- expansion or modification of storage space for proper vaccine storage;
- covering labor costs for administering vaccinations for ICDBG-eligible families;
- establishing and, under certain circumstances, paying the operating costs of temporary vaccination facilities;
- personal protective equipment and other supplies for administering vaccinations, such as outdoor tents; and
- funding public health educational campaigns to inform Tribal communities about the benefits of getting vaccinated and how to get vaccinated.

Tribes and TDHEs that have questions about the eligibility of a proposed activity are encouraged to reach out to their Area ONAP Office for additional guidance. HUD strongly encourages all Tribes and TDHEs to coordinate with other Federal agencies, including the Indian Health Service (IHS), other Tribal Departments, and any other entities assisting with vaccination efforts to ensure IHBG and ICDBG funds are only used to pay for costs that are not being paid for by others, and to prevent the duplication of benefits.

Below are some additional resources regarding COVID-19 vaccinations:

“Shreya Ramachandran, 17, remembers witnessing California’s water crisis firsthand on a visit to Tulare County in 2014, when she was still a preteen. Tulare spans a large swath of farmland in California’s Central Valley, and at that time, locals were facing dire water shortages amid an ongoing drought made worse by climate change. “I was talking to some of the people in the area whose wells completely ran dry, and they were left without water because they weren’t connected to the central water grid. They were trucking water in for even basic needs,” she said. “I was really affected by their stories, and I wanted to do something to help.” ... ” Read more from Eco Watch here: Teen scientist seeks solution to water crisis

On Thursday afternoon, mankind persevered through “seven minutes of terror” on our way to understanding the mysteries of our closest neighboring planet, Mars. Against all odds, NASA’s Perseverance science rover touched down on the surface of the Red Planet at 3:55 pm EST, making it the most advanced astrobiology lab ever sent to another world. The feat marks the end of the unmanned spacecraft’s seven-month journey, kicking off what NASA’s associate administrator of science Thomas Zurbuchen dubbed a “new era” of space exploration.

The rover’s descent into Mars was truly an incredible display of modern technology, reaching speeds of 12,400 miles per hour before using a combination of parachutes, thrusters, and “sky cranes” to achieve a cushy landing nearly 128 million miles from Earth. “The good news is the spacecraft, I think, is in great shape,” said Matt Wallace, the mission’s deputy project manager who oversaw the $2.7 billion project.

Now that the Perseverance has successfully landed, it will begin its primary objective: scouring Mars for remnants of microbial life that may have inhabited the planet 3 billion years ago. The rover will collect samples of ancient sediments with the hopes of returning them back to Earth for further analysis later in the decade. If these samples can complete the long journey back, it will mark the first time humans have ever retrieved physical evidence from another planet. President Joe Biden congratulated the American space agency on its pioneering achievement, tweeting: “Today proved once again that with the power of science and American ingenuity, nothing is beyond the realm of possibility.”

American Scholaship. The earliest documented German American Scholaship. were some 50 families of Protestants from Salzburg who arrived in the colony of Georgia in 1734 after fleeing. Granted free passage and, they established the settlement of Ebenezer near Savannah. Despite initial difficulties, sickness, and a relocation of their community, they grew and prospered as new families of immigrants arrived. Revolutionary War witnessed the destruction of their settlements, one of these Austrian settlers, Johann Adolph Milledar, elected governor of the new state of Georgia.

Few Austrians immigrated to the United States during the first half of the nineteenth century; fewer than 1,000 in official surveys by 1850. Those who did come settled in Illinois and Iowa and were supported by 100 to 200 missionaries from both Germany and Austria to oversee the settlers' religious training and education. The Leopoldine Stiftung supported such missionaries, funded priests not only for the newly emigrated, but also for the Native American Priests such as Francis Xavier Weninger (1805-1888) spread the Gospel to Austrian immigrants in the Midwest and black slaves in New Orleans. Bishop Frederic Baraga (1797-1868) was one of the most active priests among the Native Americans, working and preaching in northern Michigan.
