Resilience and Drive by Caitlin Robinson

Growing up, my sister and I were always taught that resilience and drive would get us to wherever we wanted to go in life.

Starting my freshman year at Colorado State in mechanical engineering, while that resilience stayed true, much of my time spent was pondering whether I was qualified or knowledgeable enough to hold my own. Being a shy female in a predominantly male driven field only fueled the doubts.

Junior year, I went through a tough break up from a toxic 5 year relationship, was going through a maxed out, mentally challenging class schedule, was working two jobs as an ambassador for my school's MECH department and an intern at a local firm, and was going through the loss of my beloved grandmother. I had not wanted to throw in the towel more than I did during those several grueling months. But all I could ever hear at the bottom were two words- drive and resilience.

Fast forward to today, I am working as a rocket scientist at one of the country's leading launch service providers, United Launch Alliance. I get to wake up every morning and design, build, and test what will contribute to the next generation of space exploration. And while doing that, I get to hold my own amongst several men on a daily basis.

To shy little freshman me and to all young women out there, be resilient and driven, don't let anything get in your way, and shoot for the stars, because you are destined to get there.

This story is part of the Mountain West News Bureau's "After The Sun Goes Down" series. Listen to the full series at KUNC.org . The hike from the abandoned Central Pacific train tunnels to the petroglyphs overlooking Donner Lake in northeast California is relatively short. But it's hot, and the trail is steep, so the going is slow for the roughly two dozen kids from the Washoe Tribe of Nevada and California.

By RuralOrganizing.org

The following is a statement from Matt Hildreth, Executive Director of RuralOrganizing.Org:

We are reaching crunch time on the Build Back Better reconciliation bill and we need to make something very clear: This legislation could be a much needed boon for rural America. The Build Back Better agenda addresses real concerns - the things rural families worry about every single day: child care, prescription drug prices, eye care and dental care for Seniors and programs that prioritize small, local businesses and keep rural schools, grocery stores, pharmacies, and clinics from closing. Those are real life issues. These are the things rural voters worry about and talk about every day.

Rural voters are not talking about the legislative process or parliamentarians or even the stepped-up basis. They want Congress to get things done to increase good paying jobs and wages in rural communities, decrease the daily expenses of rural Americans, and improve the quality of life in small town America.

We know billionaires and multinational corporations with their armies of corporate lobbyists are working hard to make this budget work for them - not the rest of us. Any Democrat who is working to undermine reconciliation is choosing corporate America's lobbyists and billionaires over their rural constituents.

For the last several decades, we've all seen how corporate lobbyists have rewritten our laws to ensure that the big get bigger and richer and the small get screwed. That's especially true in rural parts of the country where the corporate agenda is killing competition in the market and jacking up our prices making it harder and harder for families today to get ahead. Meanwhile, they hide behind rural voters to thwart tax reform like the stepped-up basis, which Secretary Vilsack correctly noted "has allowed the wealthy to amass large fortunes."

I'm often asked why rural voters vote against their own interests. I think, in part, it's because too many Democrats who have large rural constituencies, like Senators Manchin and Sinema, align themselves with corporate lobbyists and billionaires instead of the people they were elected to serve. We will see what Democrats do: stand with rural people or stand with their corporate donors.

Blood reserve rockhunter brings iridescent fossil shells 'back to the world' | CBC News

Wes Eaglechild, from Blood Tribe reserve 148, has been rock collecting since receiving his Surface Mining Collection permit from the community a decade ago.

Dorothy Mauwee Ely

Dorothy Mauwee Ely, 85, passed from this life into eternity on September 29, 2021. She was known as "Mom" to some, "Gramma" or "Gram" to others, and Dorothy or "Mrs. Ely" to a multitude of students she taught in a life dedicated to making sure every child learned and received an education. Dorothy is preceded in death by her husband and life-long companion Ed Ely, Jr., her siblings Judy and Gino and son Wyatt Ely. She leaves behind her sons and daughters Homer Ely, Sherry Ely-Mendes, Ed Ely III, Linda Ely, and Gloria Ely; grandchildren Jesse, Fannie, Harley, Melissa, Tilo, Ruben, Sunny, Tony, Mary, and Hilana; as well as a tribe of great grandchildren.

Dorothy was born in Little Nixon on the Natchez Overton Ely Ranch. Except for a brief time away attending the Oakland City College where she received an education as a legal secretary, and met her husband Ed, she lived her entire life on the ranch of her birth. There she raised her kids, cattle, chickens, flowers, a variety of trees, vegetable gardens, and her grandkids and great grandkids, teaching the former and later the ways of ranch living. She loved gardening and was often seen with a green hose in her hand as she tended to her many plants and flowers.

Dorothy will be remembered for many things like her delicious stews, the gentle handling of her little ones whom she dearly loved, her tenacious defense when tested, and her endless teacher's patience. To a community and the generations of lives she touched, she will always be the teacher who tutored those needing a little extra help or explanation, or the one encouraging the talented to take the next step, and the one who made sure every kid had something useful to do during the long summer vacations. Dorothy now joins her husband Ed, and together walks the streets of gold with her Savior Jesus singing and knowing "How Great Thou Art." Viewing will take place at Walton's Ross, Burke & Knobel (2155 Kietzke Ln, Reno, Nev) Sunday, October 10, 2021 at 1:00 PM. A private memorial will be held at a later date.
