PA Releases Draft Strategic Plan to Address Climate Change and Advance Environmental Justice and Equity

The Environmental Protection Agency's Draft Fiscal Year (FY) 2022-2026 EPA Strategic Plan has been published in the Federal Register and is available for public comment through November 12, 2021. The Strategic Plan communicates and provides a roadmap to achieve EPA's and the Biden-Harris Administration's priorities over the next four years.

For the first time, EPA's plan includes a strategic goal focused solely on addressing climate change, as well as an unprecedented strategic goal to advance environmental justice and civil rights. At the foundation of the plan is a renewed commitment to the three principles articulated by EPA's first Administrator, William Ruckelshaus — follow the science, follow the law, and be transparent, while adding an additional fourth principle: advance justice and equity.

"I couldn't be prouder of the Strategic Plan that EPA is putting forth today, rooted in the principles that have guided our mission since day one, and only enhanced by a new focus on justice and equity," said EPA Administrator Michael S. Regan. "EPA is at the center of the Biden-Harris administration's agenda on climate change and environmental justice, and so it's critical that our strategic direction reflect those priorities and values."

The Strategic Plan outlines seven goals and four cross-agency strategies. The strategies articulate essential ways of working to accomplish EPA's mission outcomes — instilling scientific integrity in decision making; considering children's environmental health protection; advancing organizational excellence and workforce equity; and strengthening partnerships, including early, meaningful involvement with Tribes and states and on-the-ground engagement with communities.

The plan also includes a suite of measures that will help the agency monitor progress and ensure accountability for achieving its priorities to protect human health and the environment. The plan builds on work already begun under President Biden's Executive Orders 13985: Advancing Racial Equity and Support for Underserved Communities Through the Federal Government and 14008: Tackling the Climate Crisis at Home and Abroad.

The final plan will be issued in February along with EPA's FY 2023 Budget.

By BECKY SULLIVAN & JACLYN DIAZ

It's long been known that the Vikings were the first Europeans to make the long journey to the Americas, arriving in what is now Canada sometime around the end of the first millennium. But a new article in the journal Nature is the first to pinpoint a precise date: 1021, exactly 1,000 years ago — beating the arrival of Christopher Columbus by nearly 500 years.

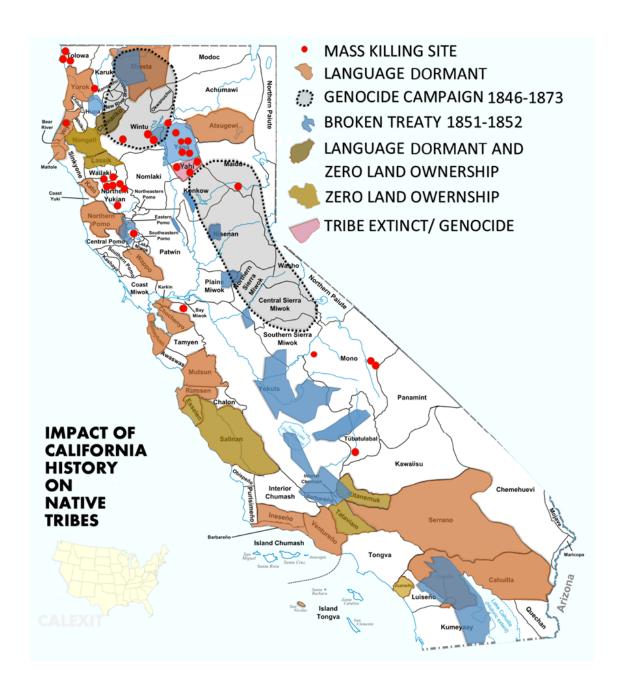

https://nvroads.com/icx/pages/cameras.aspx"The explorers — up to 100 people, both women and men — felled trees to build the village and to repair their ships, and the new study fixes a date they were there by showing they cut down at least three trees in the year 1021 — at least 470 years before Christopher Columbus reached the Bahamas In 1492

Contrary to what most non-Natives think - almost all California tribes still exist - meaning survivors are still alive to represent the fact that Americans stole their land, massacred their ancestors, silenced their languages, and broke their treaties.
