It's came from a Woman's dream long ago and therefore belongs to her, a home.

The hide covering represents Man and our responsibility to protect our loved one's in life.

The poles are the foundation which holds it up, like Women are the foundation of the Tiwahe, Tiyospaye, Oceti and Oyate.

The stakes are the Wakanyeja-Childern which help keep us grounded in life.

The pins our the Takoja'pi-Grandchildren, the future generations which serves to keep us together as we pave a way for them in Life.

The rope is a Kan-life vein which connects all, also what is above in the Star World and below on Mother Earth.

You have Life this day, may you have a good one today.

Request for Nominations for the Science Advisory Board Environmental Justice Screen \(EJScreen\) Review Panel

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) Science Advisory Board (SAB) Staff Office requests public nominations of scientific experts to form a Panel to review the updated EJScreen methodology.

Dates:

Nominations should be submitted by September 20, 2022, per the instructions below.

Process and Deadline for Submitting Nominations:

Any interested person or organization may nominate qualified individuals in the areas of expertise described above for possible service on the SAB Panel. Individuals may self-nominate. Nominations should be submitted in electronic format (preferred) using the online nomination form on the SAB website at (see the “Public Input on Membership” list under “Committees, Panels, and Membership”). To be considered, nominations should include the information requested below. EPA values and welcomes diversity. Whether you eat animals or not, animal agriculture is important for restoring environmental and soil health.

The soil on the left is the result of regenerative agricultural practices being implemented and holds significantly more organic and Carbon matter. Sheep and cattle were carefully managed and rotated on the land. They ate the grass, deposited their urine and dung and were then moved away to let the grass grow back quickly.

The cycle is then repeated at a later date depending on season variability and vegetation recovery. This allows the pulling of carbon into the soil. It is darker because carbon from the atmosphere is now in the soil making it more nutrient rich and dense.

The soil on the right is from a commercial farm that grows grain and uses no animals on the land.

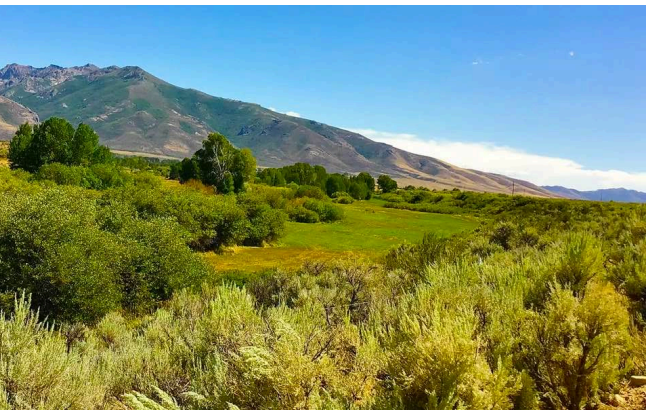

The soil with more carbon holds a lot more water (roughly 150,000 liters of water per hectare for every 1% of carbon that's added) and is full of microbes.

Animals play a crucial role in regenerating the land and getting carbon into the soil when properly managed.

These 'regenerative' practices also can be applied to crop management through the careful integration of livestock.

Tribal rights and the ability to preserve their unique cultural identities, raise their own children and govern themselves now lies in the hands of the stolen Supreme Court.

Sign the petition: We cannot allow the rights of Native American families to be stripped.

SIGN THE PETITION

Child removal has been a key element in the U.S.'s dark history of tribal genocide. The Indian Child Welfare Act (ICWA), adopted by Congress in 1978, reversed decades of family separation policies involving Native American families, including efforts to remove children for specious and frequently racist reasons. It provides safeguards against forcible removal – individually, or en masse – of indigenous children.

Now, ICWA is slated to be reviewed by the Supreme Court this fall, a Court with a majority that has shown how eager it is to overturn long-standing law and precedent.

If the Court overturns ICWA, states would once again be allowed to remove Native children from their families and culture, placing them with non-Native families, while simultaneously depriving tribes of future generations, putting their very existence at risk.

We support federal laws designed to preserve Native families and respect tribal heritage.

Eccentric flints, such as this, were sacred, high status offerings and evidence of the skill and technology of the Mayan workshops. The delicate tan chert or flint is finely knapped with two opposing deity profile heads, projects extending from their sloping heads, a pointed blade separates the two profiles, and a tapered base at the bottom may have been attached to a staff or scepter.

RENO TAHOE INTERNATIONAL ART SHOW <https://www.rtiashow.com/about>

A celebration of what's best in contemporary arts and emerging design

With a draw to the natural beauty of Lake Tahoe and the majestic High Sierra, Reno Tahoe has long been home to a significant fine arts community, with many regionally based artists and bespoke furniture designers featured in the finest galleries in the world.

The inaugural Reno Tahoe International Art Show, held September 8-11, 2022 at the Reno-Sparks Convention Center now presents interior designers, architects, consultants and collectors with a wide array of new and better fine arts and furnishings at prices untouched by a pressured market.

Over 200 regional artists will be joined by 40+ galleries and institutions invited to exhibit from around the world. Art and design enthusiasts will enjoy a lively, sophisticated exhibition filled with beautiful art and creative design, set off by live music performances, on-floor Talks, short film screenings, an on-site presentation of large-scale Burning Man sculptures and ongoing hospitality. The RTIA Show anchors a city to lakeside celebration of art and design, which includes 20+ live music performances at the Reno Sparks Convention Center, Cargo Concert Hall and the Nevada Museum of Art, a regional awards program with a gala reception held at the Nevada Museum of Art, featured events and exhibits held at the John and Geraldine Lilley Museum of Art and Sierra Arts Foundation, along with special programming at key restaurants, breweries and better retailers in Reno Tahoe.

Additional highlights will include a feature from the University of Nevada, Reno School of the Arts, students, staff and alumni and the John and Geraldine Lilley Museum of Art, Sierra Arts Foundation, Sierra Watercolor Society, Latimer Art Club and a unique, curated First Nations, Indigenous Peoples Art showcase.

The RTIA show will run concurrent with the 41st Reno Great Balloon Race, a long-standing event attracting tens of thousands from the western US and around the nation. The hot air balloon extravaganza takes place in the early to mid-morning timing, with the art show following.

The First Nations, Indigenous Peoples featured pavilion presents a curated selection of fine art, sculpture and jewelry from the most celebrated contemporary Native American artists from across the United States. <https://www.rtiashow.com/exhibitors?lightbox=dataItem-l79c6p45>
