Native American History

This photo is of the Native American Longhouse (REMAINS) located off of Manor Hill Drive in Onondaga Hill. As you can see by the people in this photo that this Longhouse was absolutely enormous, measuring in at 334 feet. Because of the size of this shelter a doorway in the middle was added, besides the doorways on each end. Can you imagine building a shelter of this size using only the trees that surrounded you. Carbon data for this site dates back to the year 1380.

Common Ideas about Neanderthals and Prehistoric Peoples That Aren't True Common Ideas about Neanderthals and Prehistoric Peoples That Aren't True

This month, we celebrated the 30th anniversary of our Women in Apprenticeship and Nontraditional Occupations (WANTO) grant program, which has served thousands of women through job-related training and retention activities since 1992. WANTO grantees set up support groups and provide supportive services like career counseling and mentoring to improve women's retention in pre-apprenticeship and apprenticeship programs. They also offer trainings for employers and unions on creating an environment for women to succeed. The WANTO grant helps women gain access to family-sustaining, high-quality jobs in the trades and nontraditional fields by creating pipelines into those career paths. Through WANTO, women are being empowered to enter and succeed in new industries.

Highlights:

- WANTO has provided nearly $33 million through 132 grants to community-based organizations since the program's inception in 1992.
- The number of female apprentices in the United States has more than doubled over the last 8 years, with women now making up almost 14% of all active apprentices.
- Electrician, truck driver, and pharmacy specialist are just some of the occupations that have seen the largest increases in female apprentices.
- In 2021, the number of women working in the trades reached the highest level ever at more than 314,000.
- Over the last five years, the number of women working in the trades has increased by almost one-third.

From the Women's Bureau:

National Women's Small Business Month

Every October, we observe National Women's Small Business Month and recognize the contributions women are making in creating jobs and strengthening the economy. Less than 35 years ago, the Women's Business Ownership Act was signed into law, providing government support for women business owners. This important piece of legislation eliminated the requirement that women entrepreneurs have a male co-signer for loans. The number of womenowned businesses in the United States has grown over the years and is now at nearly 13 million, a meaningful sign of progress.

Domestic Violence Awareness Month

Roughly 1 in 4 women experience intimate partner violence at some point in their lives, a trauma which may affect their physical and emotional health and negatively impact their ability to work and build financial security. Last year, the White House shared a National Strategy on Gender Equity and Equality. One of the key components of this strategy is addressing gender-based violence and harassment in the world of work. The strategy offers a roadmap for implementing policies and protections that safeguard women from harassment, assault and exploitation in the workplace. Earlier this month, the ILO Office for the USA and Canada, in collaboration with the Women's Bureau, hosted a virtual roundtable, "Uniting to End GBVH in the World of Work: Collaboration through Legislation and Bargaining," to discuss current efforts at the state and local levels to end gender-based violence and harassment.

We want to hear from you:

"Occupational segregation" is the gendered sorting of men and women into different types of jobs. It leads to women being overrepresented in certain jobs, which are valued and compensated less than male-dominated jobs.

We've heard from many working women about their experiences with gendered job expectations, the challenges they face at work, the support systems that help them thrive and the policy changes that would help them succeed. We'd like to hear from you.
