California Seeks Native American Help After Years of Environmental Abuse

By Governing, 12/5/22. Amid a call to incorporate tribal knowledge in environmental protection, a state agency has set a standard for authentic consultation. A history of fights over water in Owens Valley embodies the tension between growth and stewardship.

Field Notes from the American Alliance for Museums

Question of the Month

In honor of this holiday season, last month we asked about your favorite food-related object in your museum's collection. Here were some of your answers:

"An unopened bottle of Tabasco pepper vinegar (dating between 1868-1878) and belonging to the Best Cook in the Colorado Territory, Louis Dupuy" – Kevin Kuharic

"Our tortilla sculpture!" - Susan Wamsley

"George Washington's salt and pepper shakers!" - West Point Museum

"Our 96 year old mystery sandwich!" – Anna Spencer

"Seeds found in the walls of a house tied up in brown paper with milkweed twine. The seed packet was over 300 years old, and the same bean variety that was grown in the neighborhood for nearly 1500 years. Partnering with farmers, chefs, local farmers markets, we have worked to help revive that regional bean (and many other heirloom plants) identified through collections." – John Forti

"National Museum of American History has three pieces of White House wedding cake: from the celebrations of Tricia Nixon, Luci Johnson and Lynda Johnson. Still in their take home boxes!" – Bethanee Bemis

"A piece of wedding cake c. 1885. Yum!" - Rebekah Childers

"[The original grinder] of spice maker Gustav Brunn, an immigrant who escaped Nazi Germany in 1939 and was inspired by Baltimore's bounty of seafood from the Chesapeake [to create Old Bay]." – Baltimore Museum of Industry

"A 57 year-old can of fried grasshoppers in our collection that was used in one of Philip Zimbardo's experiments (he's best known for the Stanford Prison Experiment). He wanted to see how different methods of persuasion impacted subjects' attitudes toward a highly disliked food."—Tony Pankuch

"Worked at a site that had an 18 year old wheel of cheese. It had such a pungent odor that I'd pull it out to usher a group on their way." – Morgan Britt Wolf

Head over to Facebook to see many more responses, both appetizing and nauseating. This month, with holiday shopping in high gear, we want to know: What is your favorite museum store?

How Museum Stores Support Their Institutions and the Public

By Stuart Hata

If you're reading this, chances are you know the wonders of a good museum store, but have you ever stopped to think about their value to their institutions? The answer goes beyond generating revenue. Here are eleven ways they reinforce mission and enhance operations.

Take a Look Around

By Michael Latta, Mark Mitchell, and Robin Gabriel

After working with a local historic house to boost its store's performance, marketing researchers from Coastal Carolina University developed this self-evaluation tool for museums looking to improve their own retail game. Read their prompts for determining whether your store is supporting your overall experience.

Green Trends in Museum Retail

By Joyce S. Lee & Andrea Froehle

If environmental sustainability is part of your museum's mission or values, the store is an important place to reflect this, particularly as more people prioritize environmental impact in their purchases. Find out how your store's merchandising, design, build, and shipping and packaging practices can exemplify good environmental stewardship.

Agroforestry 101: Everything You Need to Know

Libby Leonard, EcoWatch

Leonard writes: "The practice of agroforestry, from a broad perspective, is farming with trees, but looking at it more closely, it's a land management system that capitalizes on the biological interconnectedness of trees, crops and livestock to create thriving ecosystems."

Bathers at Tecopa Natural Hot Springs, Tecopa, 2016. (Kim Stringfellow)

The Joshua Tree artist Kim Stringfellow has spent much of the last 25 years documenting the interplay of people and landscapes in the Mojave Desert. Stringfellow's fans describe her as one of the few people who understands that the desert is not a wasteland but a place full of life and lore. Her ongoing documentary and curatorial project, the Mojave Project, she said, is "art as activism." High Country News spent time roaming the desert with Stringfellow.

Change & Continuity: Hall of the North American Indian Diverse North American cultures are explored through the objects produced by Indigenous peoples of the nineteenth century. The Change & Continuity exhibition considers historic interactions between native peoples and Europeans during a period of profound social change.

Watch an exhibit video about returning totem poles to the Tlingit people in Alaska. The Peabody Museum commissioned new Tlingit totem poles now on view in Change & Continuity. Film by by Wen-Jie Qin.

See a collection of objects from the exhibition

Featuring a selection of objects from the museum's permanent collections, the exhibition illustrates the diversity of North American cultures, as seen through the objects produced by Indigenous peoples of the nineteenth century. The exhibition considers historic interactions between native peoples and Europeans during a period of profound social change in each culture area: Northeast; Southeast; Southwest; Plains; California/Plateau; Northwest Coast; Arctic; and Subarctic. The exhibit also highlights aspects of contemporary Native American cultures.

Special Events Coordinator (Library Events Office)

The Library of Congress is accepting applications for a Special Events Coordinator, GS-11, until December 30, 2022.

The Special Events Coordinator directs and administers the development and management of special events in the Library of Congress. The event coordinator is responsible for planning, managing, and coordinating official functions, including, but not limited to, ceremonies, exhibition openings, seminars, conferences, performances, receptions, breakfasts, lunches and dinners. These functions in concert with the exhibition, scholarly, educational, publishing, public affairs and outreach activities of the other Library units, are a key element in the efforts to interpret the extraordinary collections of the Library and to convey information on the scope and importance of Library services available to the nation's citizens. The events may also include congressionally-sponsored events; and events hosted by approved outside organizations in the Library's spaces.

Opportunity to be a DOE Reviewer

The U.S. Department of Energy's (DOE) Office of Fossil Energy and Carbon Management (FECM) is looking for a diverse pool of individuals to review the equity, justice, jobs, and community engagement sections of funding opportunity applications. Compensation is available. To apply to review, send your resume to SCI_FECM@NETL.DOE.GOV.

Reviewers should have academic, subject matter, and/or practitioner experience in at least one of following areas:

- Diversity, equity, inclusion, and accessibility (DEIA);
- Community and stakeholder engagement;
- Workforce development and quality jobs; and
- Environmental justice.

The benefits of reviewing can include:

- Bringing your professional expertise and lived experience to help inform FECM's funding decision;
- Gaining practical knowledge of the merit review process for FECM;
- Building your network by meeting new colleagues and potential partners;
- Being compensated for your review; and
- Engaging with FECM staff and contractors through a limited and clear time commitment.

Applying to be a reviewer allows you to be considered within a pool of reviewers for the Office of Fossil Energy and Carbon Management. Applying does not guarantee selection as a reviewer. In addition, DOE must ensure that selected reviewers do not have conflicts of interest and will discuss this with you prior to initiating a review of applications.

Dec. 12-14 Development Planning: Part 1 Training (Virtual Training)

This 3-day training will provide participants with an introduction to the development planning process. The training will provide a pathway for Project Implementation from Conception through Development; provide management tools and reference material to support effective Project Implementation; present compliance requirements within the context of the Project Implementation process; and provide the opportunity to apply Project Implementation concepts through case studies.

When: 9:00 a.m.- 5:00 p.m. PT

Note: Part 2: January 24-26, 2023; Part 3: February 7-9, 2023

Dec. 12-15 NAHASDA Intermediate Training (Virtual Training)

This training will provide attendees with comprehensive information regarding NAHASDA. Participants will become familiar with all program activities, including rental housing, homebuyer programs, rehabilitation, and housing and crime prevention services. Other major topics that will be covered include the IHBG formula, eligible program participants, income verifications, other federal requirements, financial management and program administration. This foundational course will acquaint tribal and TDHE staff with the basic requirements of the IHBG Program and opportunities that are available. When: 12:00 p.m.-5:00 p.m. ET Register Here

Dec. 14-15 Needs Assessment & Community Engagement (Virtual Training)

Two (2) day training on Needs Assessment. Alaska Tribes and Tribally Designated Housing Entities (TDHE) must understand the housing needs in the communities to be able to fairly and effectively distribute NAHASDA funds to achieve housing goals of homeownership, rentals, repairs and housing services programs. To increase affordable, energy efficient housing within their regions, it is critical that these tribes and TDHEs have access to solid data to help make informed decisions on where to invest, what types of housing program to develop and which funding programs to target. Knowledge derived through housing needs assessments can also assist by achieving a compelling funding case for outside investors.
