Tribal Matters - Indian Country &

Nevada is home to 19 federally recognized Native American Tribes. Our United States Attorney's Office is committed to fighting crime on tribal lands where we have jurisdiction to do so and making our Native American reservations and colonies safer. The United States Attorney's Office has jurisdiction to prosecute felonies occurring on these reservations and colonies. The staffed branch office in Reno, Nevada, handles the majority of the cases that originate on Nevada Native American lands. In furtherance of our commitment to safety on the reservations and colonies and in addressing Native American issues, our United States Attorney's Office has put together a District of Nevada Operational Plan for Tribal Matters and a District of Nevada Informational Resource Manual for Tribal Matters. The primary purpose of the Operational Plan and the Manual is to provide information and a resource in a number of areas concerning Tribal matters, to include policies and procedures of the USAO with respect to Indian Country investigations and prosecutions, federal offenses and their statutory elements, information concerning jurisdiction, maps of Nevada and our various Tribes, reservations and colonies, victim information and resources, Tribal profiles of each of our Tribes, reservations and colonies and pertinent points of contact for our Tribes, law enforcement partners, victims and witnesses.

The 2023 Library of Congress Lavine/Ken Burns Prize for Film is officially open for submissions!

To learn more about the Prize, and submit a history documentary film for consideration, click here.

This annual national prize, now in its 5th year, is designed to provide finishing funds, including outreach and marketing, for feature-length U.S. historical documentaries. The award recognizes one filmmaker whose late-stage documentary uses original research and compelling narrative to tell stories that bring American history to life using archival materials. The winner receives a $200,000 finishing grant to help with the final production and distribution of the film. In addition, one runner up receives a grant of $50,000 and four finalists each receive $25,000. The funds are to be used for finishing, marketing, distribution, and outreach. The Prize will be presented on September 26, 2023 at a ceremony held within the Great Hall of the Library of Congress.

The establishment of the Library of Congress Lavine/Ken Burns Prize for Film reflects the critical role history documentary film plays today in educating Americans about the American story. The Prize is bestowed by Librarian Carla Hayden and filmmaker Ken Burns who co-chair a national jury of esteemed scholars, filmmakers, and journalists. The Library of Congress Lavine/Ken Burns Prize for Film joins other awards bestowed by the Library of Congress including the Gershwin Prize for Popular Song, the Prize for American Fiction, and the Kluge Prize for the Study of Humanity.

AFFIRMATIVELY FURTHERING FAIR HOUSING (AFFH) NOTICE OF PROPOSED RULEMAKING

The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) has published in the Federal Register a Notice of Proposed Rulemaking \(NPRM\) entitled “Affirmatively Furthering Fair Housing”. The proposed rule would faithfully implement the Fair Housing Act’s statutory mandate to affirmatively further fair housing (AFFH), which directs HUD to ensure that the agency and its program participants proactively take meaningful actions to overcome patterns of segregation, promote fair housing choice, eliminate disparities in opportunities, and foster inclusive communities free from discrimination.

This proposed rule implements the Fair Housing Act's affirmatively furthering fair housing mandate, which directs the government to promote fair housing choice, eliminate disparities in housing, and foster inclusive communities. While building avenues for greater accountability, this proposed rule streamlines the required fair housing analysis for local communities, states, and public housing agencies and requires them to set ambitious goals to address fair housing issues facing their communities, among other landmark changes. In particular, the proposed rule is designed to simplify the required fair housing analysis, emphasize goal-setting, increase transparency for public review and comment, foster local commitment to addressing fair housing issues, enhance HUD technical assistance to local communities, and provide mechanisms for regular program evaluation and greater accountability, among other changes.

HUD welcomes robust public comment on this proposed rule. Public comments are requested within 60 days of publication of the NPRM, by April 10, 2023. Please refer to the details outlined in the Federal Register for guidance towards submitting comments by this deadline.

- Please read Secretary Fudge’s op-ed, President Biden’s Statement, HUD’s Press Release, AFFH NPRM Fact Sheet and Frequently Asked Questions, and the Quick Reference Guide to learn more about the proposed rule.
- For tips on how to submit public comment, please view the How To Guide.

Joshua Goodman, Associated Press

Goodman writes: "In an industrial corridor of Peru’s capital, a dingy stairwell leads to a second-floor safehouse. Dozens of Quechua and Aymara activists lie on mattresses strewn on the floor, resting up for more anti-government demonstrations as volunteers cook a breakfast of donated rice, pasta and vegetables."

Perhaps most significantly, Barrick has engaged extensively with regional Western Shoshone communities to better understand their cultural and historical traditions, address their concerns about the project and offer participation in the project’s benefits. The company has made a commitment to discuss and consider any issue that may concern the Western Shoshone community. Dialogue partners include members of the Tribal and Band Councils of the Western Shoshone who have been elected by their members to represent their interests. These forums provide a constructive process for raising awareness, sharing ideas and helping to create an environment of trust and partnership.

In late 2008, Barrick signed an historic Collaborative Agreement with leaders of four Western Shoshone tribal groups to improve education, business and employment opportunities for the Western Shoshone, enhance awareness of Native culture and to build greater mutual understanding. The Collaborative Agreement also established the independent Western Shoshone Educational Legacy Fund, with funding coming directly from the revenue generated by the Cortez Hills mine. The Fund currently amounts to approximately $1 million (January 2011), and is expected to increase to $7-10 million over time. The Fund provides scholarship grants for 50-60 Western Shoshone every semester, and will provide financial support for generations of Western Shoshone seeking higher education. Any adult Shoshone is eligible to apply for these scholarships, and the Fund is managed by a Board of Trustees which includes representatives from all of the Western Shoshone tribal groups.

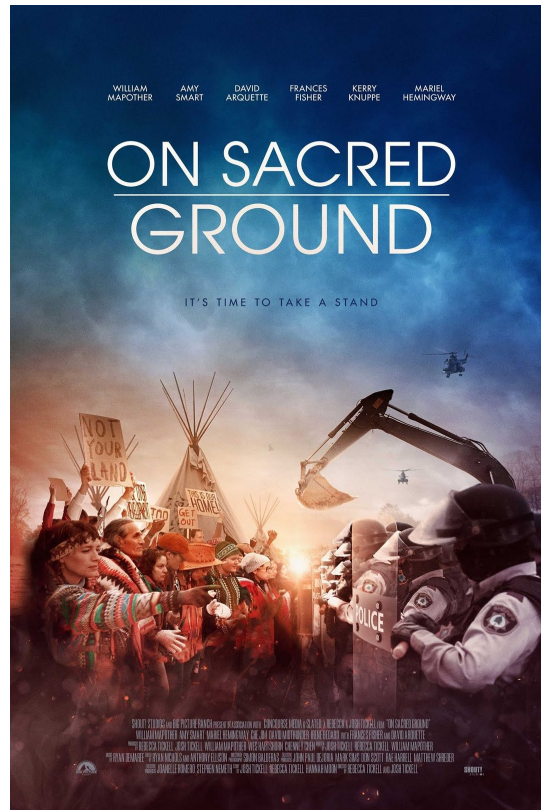

In 2009 two activist organizations, a Nevada Shoshone tribal group and a group from California, sought an injunction to stop the project after the BLM’s approval, alleging that the agency failed to fully consider all impacts of the Cortez Hills project. After review of relevant factors, this request was denied by a U.S. District Judge. A subsequent appeal by these groups to the Circuit Court of Appeals resulted in an agreement by Barrick and the BLM, under a limited injunction, to complete additional environmental analysis related to the project in a Supplementary Environmental Impact Analysis (SEIS). This limited injunction allowed the mine to be constructed and operated as planned. This partial injunction was lifted in early 2011 after the SEIS demonstrated that the project had incorporated the proper steps to mitigate environmental impacts.

These efforts to engage with and meet the needs of local communities and the environment are a vital part of developing any mine in Nevada today. By respecting and working with communities and other stakeholders, mining offers significant benefits that can be widely shared.

This morning was super shocking and heartbreaking to hear the passing of Hube'e Charlotte Harry.\

I ask if you can send good thoughts& prayers to the Harry/Davis family at this time. It is a extremely hard death for the family. I ask prayers for my daughter who had a very special bond with her hube'e. I send my deepest condolences to the Harry/Davis family at this time... sending you lots of hugs, prayers, and comfort.

Charlotte was a very special lady, she was always all smiles and open arms with love. I will miss her love, compassion, and wisdom she was always willing to give. She was the rock to her family who loved all her children, grandchildren, and great grandchildren and always there to support all of them at their games and things they all did. She was always involved in her community, touched many peoples hearts.

We are going to miss her tremendously.

R.I.P. Hube'e Charlotte

Carol Smith

My heart's been very heavy especially these past few days. Times like this remind of our communities and our shared losses. Auntie Charlotte was our Dad's cousin on the Davis side thru our dear Grama Nina. They went to school together n she often shared memories with me. Our elders are leaving us, one by one. Heartfelt prayers to our Davis and Harry families.

Rolly was in my sister's class at Natchez way back when. He was always there to help in our communities wherever needed. I'll miss passing him moving farm equipment and helping cousin Ralphie during hay season. He'd ask Dion to help watch the water whenever he was out of town. Thinking back on past summers checking water n closing gates with Dion, I never realized how special those times really were. Prayers and deepest sympathy to the Moore and Mandell families.

The loss of these special people is tremendous to our families and communities. Grief is heavy.
