Indian Land Cessions in the United States, 1784 to 1894

Many are just beginning and wanting to learn their Traditions, Languages, Prayers, Songs, Dances and Stories. Don't feel as though it's too late to learn and don't let anyone's opinion of you wanting to learn stop you.

EPA Issues Fiscal Year 2022 Environmental Collaboration and Conflict Resolution Annual Report

The Office of Environmental Justice and External Civil Rights' Conflict Prevention and Resolution Center \(CPRC\) has issued this year's annual report on environmental collaboration and conflict resolution (ECCR) at EPA. This report highlights the EPA's key achievements in providing ECCR in fiscal year 2022 and the infrastructure that supports this work. ECCR continues to be an essential tool used to advance the Agency's goals, including tackling the climate crisis, taking decisive action to advance environmental justice and civil rights, and strengthening tribal, state, and local partnerships.

Read the Fiscal Year 2022 Environmental Collaboration and Conflict Resolution Annual Report

Background:

The CPRC supports EPA's regulatory, enforcement, and voluntary programs by providing alternative dispute resolution \(ADR\) services to the entire agency. Expert CPRC staff, specialists in ADR in the EPA's 10 regions, as well as professionals engaged through the CPRC's Conflict Prevention and Resolution Services contract, help EPA and its stakeholders exchange ideas and information, identify areas of concern and common interest, develop recommendations, prevent and overcome disputes, and reach agreements. Every office at EPA has access to this contract to quickly hire professional neutral facilitators and mediators to assist with preventing and reducing conflict associated with their environmental projects. The CPRC supports ADR across the Agency, pursuant to EPA's ADR Policy.

If you have any questions about CPRC or its services, please contact the CPRC team

Native American Story

This is a picture of Standing Holy, who is listed as Sitting Bull's daughter. It brings to mind the traditional Oceti Šakowiŋ style of parenting. The first time that Sitting Bull traveled and observed non-Native people spanking their children, he was shocked.

There was never a need to continually scold a child, belittle them, or strike them. They cuddled their children from birth to about seven because they believed crying wasn't good for children. Often, if a child did not stop crying, some grandmothers would cry along with them to help them get over whatever had made them sad.

At an early age, they begin to take on the responsibility of their clothing and bedding. Our people traveled with the buffalo and had to be mobile. By the age of 10, most of our children knew how to take care of the materials needed for travel.

Love, teaching, structure, and community raised our children.

Colonization tells us that physical discipline helps shape our children and turn our boys into men. Yet, without ever being spanked, we produced the greatest warriors that ever walked this land. Our lifeways and ceremonies through the different stages of life were more valuable than anything colonization offered.

Ancestors' wildest dreams

BY KINSALE DRAKE

r drunk on the sticky floor of a Denny's      texting gma Ayóó aníníshní; & crying in the same hot breath abt not knowing the right word for apology

if one exists      keyboard smashing resilience resilience resilienceResielance as we delete IG so we don't have to see ppl out-sacred-ing

each other      Maybe we're only sovereign in bed      sometimes      drowning in the dark and in the soft pools of their eyes, living off the hard tack

of their thighs moving to an MCR mixtape
We froth      Ancestors' sleep-paralysis demon      caught in cold sweat and skipped therapy      untangling our bodies from sheets      always untangling hair out from under      somewhere Fractals left in corners, under juniper berry branches      Do we even remember how gma baked her pies? The cornstalks stretched higher than Holy People that yr ... & we came home buzzed on lemonade      & an auntie's laughter ...

Everyone is always talking about an ancestor that is or isn't pleased

BUT—

I saw a strawberry moon tonight rising ...
I learned the word in my language for laugh ...
    We found it together:
Dloh      dloh dloh dloh

We eat it
We setting-spray it to the page

MuseWeb 2023

Washington, DC | April 3, 4, & 5, 2023 | In-Person Conference | #MW23

There are over 40 panels, papers, demonstrations, and lightning talks over two days. While the website has a daily rundown of each session, here are some highlights:

Sunday, April 2:

An insider's tour & the best views of Washington, D.C. A few seats left! RSVP now.

Monday, April 3:

Opening Keynote Session with Paul Marty and Kathy Jones "Affirming the Value of the Professional MuseTech Community." Please join us for coffee and tea before the opening keynote from 2:30pm to 3:30pm.

Tuesday, April 4:

- 8:30-9:30am: Demonstration & Coffee : Gamification in Museums: A Demonstration of Epic Journeys. This demonstration is for a split-screen touch table quiz game, called "Epic Journeys: Travel and Trade in the 1600s". This game, allowing multiple players, covers the topic of travel and trade in 17th century Europe and how that influenced art during the time.
- 1:30-3:00pm: Paper: From sea to screen: Bringing the ocean inland with online learning at the Monterey Bay Aquarium: In 2022, the Aquarium conducted an in-depth study of its online courses which reached 55,000 learners worldwide, uncovering the motivations and satisfaction of the courses' main audiences. This paper will share best practices, findings, and recommendations from the evaluation that can inform other organizations' investment in online learning.
- 3:00-4:00pm: Professional Forum: The Evolution of Museums in Web3: We will conduct a conversation about how web3 technologies can help museums address mission critical problems, such as membership, community building, preservation, educational impact, environmental impact and repatriation of cultural objects.

Wednesday, April 5:

- 8:30-9:30am: Demonstration & Coffee: Online Exhibitions at Bard Graduate Center: During the pandemic, as our gallery went dark, a plan was developed to showcase the exhibition which was forced closed online. That work led to new path and process for not only bringing all of our future exhibition content online, but also developing new born digital projects as well. This demonstration will showcase these incredible projects and the digital tools used to bring them to life online!
- 11:15-12:30pm: Professional Forum: Exploring the Impact of Virtual Programs on Revenue Generation at Cultural Organizations: What types of virtual initiatives are bringing in the most revenue? What is the return on investment for digital programs? To understand how museums are generating revenue through virtual programs and the long-term outlook of digital, this session will share the results of a 2021 study of 500+ cultural professionals.

- 4:00-5:30pm: Lightning Talks: Utilizing XR Technology To Enhance Engagement With Artifacts In Museums: The Toronto Metropolitan University (TMU) Library is one of many educational institutions to provide XR technology as tools for faculty and students, which has also helped foster a strong partnership between the TMU Library and the Aga Khan Museum (AKM) in Toronto, ON Canada. This lightning talk will focus on how the partnership between the TMU Library and the AKM has allowed the introduction of XR technology within the AKM ecosystem

Session Highlight: Paper session 8: Deep Viewpoints: Using Citizen Curation to challenge the Participation Gap

The museum field has undergone massive change since the first MuseWeb conference in 1997. The internet was relatively new as a consumer service, smartphones and texting didn't exist, and even photography was frowned on and rarely allowed. Discussions of transparency were typically about windows and displays.

At Paper Session 8, The Future of Museums, we invite you to join us for a look back and then to turn our eyes forward. T. Leo Cao will discuss how museums' definitions of openness have changed since 1997 with a fascinating analysis of MuseWeb papers presented since the earliest days of this conference. He'll show how museums have gradually shifted from an internal to external focus where openness is concerned. Radha Nagaraja will talk about the nature of the data museums use and the challenges that arise when data comes from many different sources. Is there a way to make sense of it all? Paul Mulholland will show how lack of perceived relevance may be a substantial barrier for people to even think about visiting a museum in the first place. He will show how citizen curation can help reduce this barrier by allowing visitors to tell their own stories and share their own perspectives on a museum's collection.

Taken together, these three papers will give a fascinating insight on where our field has come from and show us steps we can take to keep moving forward.

5 ways entrepreneurship can help teenagers overcome negative peer pressure

Entrepreneur

Peer pressure is a common challenge that teenagers face as they navigate through adolescence. It can come in many forms, such as pressure to conform to societal norms or to engage in risky or negative behaviors. However, one effective way to help teens overcome these pressures is through entrepreneurship. Now, it's important to understand not every teen has the entrepreneur DNA, but if you can convince your adolescent to take an interest in it, there will be lifelong benefits. Read More
